

Index and Concordance to Alexander Vassiliev's Notebooks and Soviet Cables Deciphered by the National Security Agency's Venona Project [Revised 11/1/2014]

This index and concordance indexes twenty-one volumes of KGB archival material: nine notebooks written by Alexander Vassiliev and twelve compilations of the Soviet international telegraphic cables deciphered by the U.S. National Security Agency's Venona project. Indexed are proper names, cover names, and organizational titles along with some geographic entities, events, diplomatic conferences, and subjects. When known, cover names are cross-indexed with the real name behind the cover name. Brief biographical or explanatory information is provided for significant figures, tradecraft terminology is defined, and obscure abbreviations expanded.

How to Use this Index

Alexander Vassiliev's notebooks : This index/concordance indexes the English translations of Alexander Vassiliev's nine notebooks. The notebooks are entitled:

Vassiliev Black Notebook
Vassiliev White Notebook #1
Vassiliev White Notebook #2
Vassiliev White Notebook #3
Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1
Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2
Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3
Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4
Vassiliev Odd Pages

These notebooks are paginated, and an index entry referenced the page of the cited volume. Page number are in the upper right hand corner of each page. For example, the entry for the cover name "Achilles" is as follows:

 "Achilles" ["Akhill"] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Karl Dunts. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 27, 100; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99, 106.

"Achilles" is the cover name as it appears in the English translation of Vassiliev's notebooks. In this case, "Achilles" appears on pages 27 and 100 of Vassiliev Black Notebook and pages 99 and 106 of Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1. Cover names in Vassiliev's notebooks are usually within quotation marks and are usually in title case with the first letter capitalized. (The Venona project followed a different convention.)

["Akhill"] is the Cyrillic Russian original transliterated into the Latin alphabet of the cover name "Achilles." "Akhill" does not appear in the translated Vassiliev notebooks in the Latin alphabet but does appear in Cyrillic Russian in the transcribed and original handwritten versions of Vassiliev's notebooks. Since the pagination of all three versions is the same, the page citation to the English translation is also accurate for the two Cyrillic Russian versions. "Akhill" is in the Latin alphabet with the transliteration from Cyrillic done using the BGN/PCGN transliteration system.

Karl Dunts is the real name behind the “Achilles” cover name. In many cases, however, the real identity of the cover named person is not known. In those cases, the entry indicates that the cover name is unidentified but may cite something about that person’s attributes if those are given in the text of Vassiliev’s notebooks.

When the real name behind a cover name is known, there is also an index entry for the real name. In the of “Achilles”/Dunts, the entry reads:

 Dunts, Karl Adamovich: Soviet intelligence officer. Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Achilles”.
 As Dunts: Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99. As “Achilles”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 27, 100;
Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99, 106.

As Dunts: Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99 indicates that he appears under his real name on page 99 of Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1.

As “Achilles”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 27, 100; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99, 106 indicates where he appears under his cover name.

The Venona Decryptions: To facilitate access and indexing, the more than 3,000 cables are compiled into forty-five volumes according to what Soviet agency was involved and the location of the field station that send or received the cables. Only the cables between Moscow and its American stations (which includes most of the cables decoded) are completely indexed. These Moscow-USA cables are compiled into twelve volumes:

Venona New York KGB 1941-42
Venona New York KGB 1943
Venona New York KGB 1944
Venona New York KGB 1945
Venona Washington KGB
Venona San Francisco KGB
Venona USA GRU
Venona USA Naval GRU
Venona USA Diplomatic
Venona USA Trade
Venona New York/Buenos Aires Secret Writings
Venona Special Studies.

However, Americans and some other significant figures who appear in these Moscow-USA volumes are also indexed to where they appear in non-USA traffic. There are citations to four non-U.S. volumes: Venona Mexico City KGB, Venona Ottawa GRU, Venona London KGB, and Venona London GRU.

These volumes are paginated, and an index entry references the page of the cited volume. Page number are in the upper right hand corner of each page. For example, the entry for the cover name ACORN is as follows:

ACORN [ZHOLUD'] (cover name in Venona): Bela (William) Gold. Venona New York KGB 1945 8–9, 16; Venona Special Studies, 27.

ACORN is the translated cover name as it appears in the deciphered Venona cables. In this case ACORN appears on page 8, 9, and 16 of the compiled volumes of decoded cables entitled Venona New York KGB 1945 and page 27 of Venona Special Studies. The Venona project follows the convention of placing cover names in all capital letters without quotation marks.

[ZHOLUD'] is the Russian original of the translated ACORN. The deciphered cables often contain both the original Russian in transliterated form and the translation into English. Many cables, however, have only the translation or the transliteration. Consequently both forms are indexed. In this case there is a separate index entry of ZHOLUD' as well as for ACORN. While Vassiliev's notebooks were transliterated with a single transliteration system (BGN/PCGN), the cables of the Venona project were decrypted and translated over a more than thirty year period by many different cryptanalysts and translators. Several different transliteration systems were used and there is significant inconsistency in how Russian names and terms are rendered into the Latin alphabet. In order to simplify the indexing task, all transliterated cover names appear in the index in all capital letters (following the Venona convention for the English translation) no matter how it actually appears in the decryption (ZHOLUD', for examples, appears as ZhOULD'). The transcribed decryptions, however, reproduce exactly the format of the original Venona project decryption.

Bela (William) Gold is the real name behind the ACORN cover name. In many cases, however, the real identity of the cover named person is not known. In those cases, the entry indicates that the cover name is unidentified but may cite something about that person's attributes if those are given in the text of the decrypted messages. As with Vassiliev's notebooks, there is a separate entry for the real name that cites where the real name occurs and where the cover name (or names) of that person occurs.

Points to Keep in Mind when Using this Index

Cover names are often changed. Julius Rosenberg, for example, had three different cover names during his association with the KGB. Each cover name has its own entry with citations to the pages where it appears. The real name entry cites where the real name appears and repeats the cover name citations as well.

Cover names are reused. Four different persons, for example, had the cover name "Smith" at one time or another. When more than one person had the same cover name this index attempts to separate out the different "Smiths". Usually this is without difficulty because the multiple uses are well separated by time or activity. Occasionally, however, it is difficult and in those cases the lack of certainty is indicated in the entry.

Identifying the real name behind a cover name. Often this is without difficulty because the text of Vassiliev's notebooks or the deciphered Venona messages simply provides the real name without ambiguity. Where the real name is not provided by the text, then the description of that person's activity, where he or she worked, where they lived, or what trips they took at a particular time may make identification possible. In the case of the Venona decryptions, when the text did not provide a real name, most of the work of identification was done by the FBI whose field agents used the information about the activities of a cover name to pin down the real person behind it. Often, however, the information was insufficient to establish identification. Consequently, more than half of the cover names in this index are unidentified. When evidence about a cover name suggests an identification but is not conclusive, the uncertainty is noted.

Two separate but overlapping set of documentation. Vassiliev's notebooks contain long quoted extracts and summaries he made of KGB archival material on KGB activities in the United States from the early 1930s to the early 1950s with some scattered later material as well. The deciphered cables of the Venona project dated from 1941 to 1950 with the bulk in the period 1943 to 1945. Most are also about KGB activity in the United States although there are also decoded cables of other Soviet agencies as well. There is, consequently, a considerable overlap in the two sets of material for KGB activity in the United States in the 1940s. In a number of cases a passage in Vassiliev's notebooks turns out to be the complete text of a Venona cable that was only partially decoded. Vassiliev's notebooks and the Venona decrypts have identical real name identification for nearly two hundred cover names. Vassiliev's notebooks provide the real names for more than sixty cover names that were unidentified in the Venona decrypts. The Venona decrypts provide the real names behind nearly thirty cover names that are unidentified in Vassiliev's notebooks. Vassiliev's notebooks correct misidentification of four cover names in the Venona decrypts.

Partial decoding and partial names. In the case of the Venona decrypts while some messages were fully decoded, most had passages that were indecipherable and sometimes names were only partially spelled. These partial spellings are indexed with eclipses indicating the missing letters. In both the Venona cables and Vassiliev's notebooks often only the surname of a person is given in the text. When originally written, this would have been perfectly understandable to those reading the message or document because they were aware of the identities of the persons being discussed. And even today, often the context of the name allows one to attach a given name to a surname without difficulty. Still, however, there remain numerous surnames where the lack of information about the person prevents the attachment of a given name and leaves the person named only partially identified. A question mark, ?, indicates that a given name or, occasionally, a surname, is missing.

The Index

A: Abbreviation for Anglia, i.e. England. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 85.

A Group (or Group "A"): Section of KGB in 1947. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 84.

"A": Harry Gold's designation of "Charles"/Fuchs in a report. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 75.

"A": Initial for a cover name or a real name connected with KGB plans for use of the music company of Boris Morros and Alfred Stern. Likely "A" for Alfred Stern in as much as it is paired with "B" for Boris Morros. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 16–19.

"A" (cover name in Venona): Likely Anna Colloms. Venona analysts were unsure if "A" was a cover name or an initial used as one. "A" was a courier, and the description of her activities matches those of Anna Colloms.¹ Venona Mexico City KGB, 53, 55, 57.

"A. Serov": Soviet ship. Venona USA Naval GRU, 19.

"A. Sovorov": Soviet ship. Venona USA Naval GRU, 125.

- Abrams, ?: Described as director of Interchemical Corporation. Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 62.
- Abt, John: Abt appears in Vassiliev’s notebooks with his name misspelled once as “Ant” as well as correctly spelled as “Abt”. The “Ant” misspelling was in the original KGB document, and a Vassiliev annotation noted it as a misspelling of “Abt.” Abt’s name appears in the Venona messages misspelled as “Amt.” Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Bat”. As Abt: Vassiliev’s Vassiliev Odd Pages, 34; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 3–4, 37, 73; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 44–45, 60, 67–68, 86, 90, 96; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 62; Venona New York KGB 1944, 33, 113. As Amt: Venona New York KGB 1944, 33, 113. As “Bat”: Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 4. Abt’s sister was Marion Bachrach (cover name “Reyna”), and Abt also appears “‘Reyna’s’ brother John”: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 10.
- Abwehr: German military intelligence agency. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 87–88.
- “Academic” [“Akademich”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): A 1948 cover name with unclear meaning, possibly Communist activity or espionage work. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 128.

- ACHIEVEMENT [DOSTIZHENIE] (cover name in Venona): A KGB operation involving Mexico, possibly in reference to attempts to gain release of Trotsky’s assassin. Venona New York KGB 1943, 82–83; Venona New York KGB 1944, 39–40.
- ACHILLES [AKHIL] (cover name in Venona): Likely Arthur Adams. ACHILLES was an unidentified GRU agent in Venona. But ACHILLES is identified as Adams’ GRU cover name during 1939–1946 in Russian literature on the GRU, and ACHILLES’s activities reported in the Venona cables fit with FBI surveillance of Adams during World War II.² Venona USA GRU, 1, 90.
- “Achilles” [“Akhil”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Karl Dunts. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 27, 100; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 99, 106.
- “Achilles” (cover name in Venona): A speculative decoding of a partially solved cover name. Venona Special Studies, 174.
- “Acorn” [“Zholud”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Bela (William) Gold. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 78; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 6, 68; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 31, 33; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 28, 30–31, 34–35, 38, 42.
- ACORN [ZHOLUD] (cover name in Venona): Bela (William) Gold. Venona New York KGB 1945 8–9, 16; Venona Special Studies, 27.
- ACP: American Communist Party. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 147; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 46; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 50, 104.
- Active measures: Aktivakhi – aktivnye meropriyatiya. Described actions taken to plant disinformation in the mainstream press and media via ostensibly non-Communist or neutral sources. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 71, 87; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 57–58.
- “Actor” [“Aker”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent. Member of the American Socialist Party, source on Trotskyist movement in 1937, visited Trotsky in Mexico. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 28.

2. Vladimir Lota, GRU i Atomnaya Bomba (Moscow, Russia: OLMA-Press, 2002), 192–214.

- ADA (cover name in Venona): Kitty Harris. Venona New York KGB 1943, 362–63; Venona Special Studies, 3; Venona Mexico City KGB, 3, 11, 64–65, 90–91, 103–4, 120–21, 129, 141–42, 144, 156, 189, 216, 232, 254–56, 261–62, 308, 310, 316, 330–31, 339–41, 343, 353.
- “Adam” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Eva Getsov. (“Adam” as a cover name for “Eva” Getsov looks like a KGB play on words “Adam” and “Eve”.) “Adam” was identified in 1944 and 1945 Venona decryptions as Rebecca Getzoff. While it seems likely, it is not firmly established that Eva Getsov and Rebecca Getzoff are the same person. “Adam” appears to be garbled once as “Adams” As “Adam”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 68, 78, 101, 176; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 66, 145; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 30, 32–33; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 74, 80; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 83; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 67. - “Adams” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Soviet agent, referred to as a liaison/courier agent in 1942. Likely a garble for “Adam”/Getsov. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 48.
- Adams, Arthur Alexandrovich: Soviet intelligence officer, GRU. Adams, born in Sweden, spend much of his early life in Russia and joined the Bolshevik faction of the Russian Social Democratic Labor Party in the early 1900s. He emigrated to Canada and graduated from the University of Toronto with a degree in engineering. He then moved to the United States and joined the radical wing of the Socialist Party. In 1920 he became the head of the technical department of the Soviet Russian Information Bureau, the new Soviet regime’s unofficial diplomatic office. The U.S. government shut down the Bureau in 1921 and deported its staff, including Adams. He returned for several visits in in the late 1920s and early 1930s as a representative of the Soviet aviation industry. In 1934 he joined the GRU and served as chief of the GRU illegal station in the United States from 1935 to 1938 and again from 1939 to early 1946. Cover name in Venona: ACHILLES [AKHIL]. As ACHILLES [AKHIL]: Venona USA GRU, 1, 90–91.
- Adams, James Truslow: Well-known American historian. No relation of Josephine Truslow Adams. Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 40.
- Adams, Josephine Truslow: Secret Communist. Adams, who may have been mentally unbalanced, convinced CPUSA chief Earl Browder that she as a confidant of Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt and was a covert communications link between the President and Browder.³ Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 40; Venona USA GRU, 105.

Apresyan, Stepan Zakharovich mistakenly identified as Pavel Ivanovich Fedosimov: Venona analysts initially believed that the real name behind the cover name MAY [MAJ], acting chief of the KGB New York Station for part of 1944 and 1945, was Pavel Fedosimov, a diplomat at the New York consulate. Eventually, however, Venona analysts realized that this was an error and that MAY was Stepan Apresyan, another Soviet diplomat at the New York consulate who in 1945 transferred to the San Francisco consulate (with the MAY cover name simultaneously disappearing from the New York KGB message traffic and appearing in San Francisco traffic). (Fedosimov’s actual cover name, it turned out, was STEPAN, See the separate Fedosimov/STEPAN entry.) Venona analysts corrected a number of the deciphered Venona messages where MAY was identified as Fedosimov, but others were not corrected. The deciphered messages were for internal use by analysts, all of whom knew of the change, so likely correcting all of them was regarded as of little value. There are a large number of messages where MAY appears because Apresyan was the acting chief of the KGB New York station for part of 1944 and 1945 and during that period most outgoing messages were signed by him and most incoming messages were addressed to him. Consequently, all messages where MAY [MAJ] was identified as Fedosimov should be understood as references to Apresyan, whether corrected or not. The following Fedosimov references are MAY [MAJ] references that should be understood as actually referencing Apresyan: Venona New York KGB 1944, 26, 29–30, 38, 44–46, 48, 50–51, 57, 62–63, 72, 74, 76, 78, 83, 85, 88, 90, 92–93, 98, 100–101, 109, 112, 115–16, 120, 129, 138, 142, 151, 164, 178, 180, 186–87, 196, 198, 201–2, 205, 207, 213, 220, 226, 229–30, 241, 257, 277, 284, 287, 297, 300, 307, 309, 323, 338, 340, 343, 345, 351, 379, 391, 393, Bauer, Joseph: Technical employee of Republic Aviation. Candidate for “Bugle” in Vassiliev’s notebooks and BUGLE in Venona. Bauer worked at Republic Aviation in New York at the time when “Bugle” was active. A September 1944 KGB Venona cable stated that KGB source STAMP/Smeltzer (employed at Bell Aircraft) and KGB officer ARSENY/Shevchenko had “visited a common acquaintance “B.” who was identified as working at Republic Aviation. “B.” provided “Arseny” with information on Republic Aviation’s work on the American version of the German V-1 ram jet missile. The message also relates that Julius Rosenberg provided information on the same project. FBI/NSA identified “B.” but redacted the name (as it did for STAMP as well), likely indicating that when confronted, “B.” had cooperated with FBI. In reports on the Rosenberg case, the FBI asked David Greenglass about his knowledge of Harold Smeltzer and Joseph Bauer and of possible Julius Rosenberg’s contact with them. This suggests that by that point the Venona message on STAMP and BUGLE had been broken, Smeltzer and Bauer identified, and FBI was checking with Gold to see if he knew of any Rosenberg contact with them because of the common link over the American V-1.¹⁷ This suggests that Bauer is a strong candidate for the real name behind the initial “B.” and the cover names “Bugle” in Vassiliev’s notebooks and BUGLE [GORN] in Venona. As “B.”: Venona New York KGB 1944, 498–99. As “Bugle”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 114, 119, 127, 135–36. As BUGLE [GORN]: Venona New York KGB 1944, 631–32. Venona Special Studies, 19.

She also appears in Venona with her real name spelled Becker. Daughter of the prominent German Communist William Koenen. After the Nazi seizure of power in Germany, Beker moved to Moscow where she worked as a translator for American businessmen. She testified that the KGB recruited her in 1937 to inform on Americans visiting Moscow and in 1939 sent her to the United States. In 1942 the KGB assigned her to the network run by Jack Soble and Robert Soblen. She worked for Soblen as a courier and later testified against him at his trial in 1961.¹⁸ As Becker: Venona Special Studies, 36. As “Clemence”: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 55. “Belka” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Squirrel”.

BELKA [SQUIRREL] (cover name in Venona): BELKA [SQUIRREL] was identified in a single 1945 Venona message that also discussed LENS (Michael Sidorovich) and Venona analysts suggested that BELKA was possibly Ann Sidorovich. Based on Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks, this was mistaken. Instead, “Squirrel” was a courier who serviced a safe house hosted by “Lens” (Michael Sidorovich) and “Objective” (Ann Sidorovich).¹⁹ In terms of identifying “Squirrel” the notebooks describe her as the “wife of ‘Hudson’” There are two Hudson’s in Vassiliev’s notebooks. One is the unidentified Soviet agent “Hudson”. If “Squirrel” is married to the unidentified agent “Hudson”, then she is also unidentified. However, senior CPUSA official Roy Hudson also appears in Vassiliev’s notebooks and was know to KGB officers. His wife was Edith Emery and her background would qualify her for covert courier work. In the 1930s Emery had worked with Whittaker Chambers CPUSA-GRU network and she was the subject of a badly broken New York KGB message to Moscow on 3 July 1942 mentioning Emery, the Comintern, and the GRU. Just five days after the garbled KGB cable to Moscow about Emery, Fitin of the KGB asked the Comintern to provide whatever information the Comintern had on Emery as well as on two other persons associated with her. What the 1942 KGB cable and Fitin’s query were about is not clear.²⁰ This was a period when the KGB was reviewing and in some cases reviving dormant Comintern and GRU networks, and these documents may part of that process of vetting Emery for being taken on as a courier. The evidence, however, is insufficient to reach a conclusion. Venona New York KGB 1945, 88; Venona Special Studies, 12.

- Bukov, Barna: Soviet intelligence officer. Birth name Altman. Barna is an unusual name for a Russian and may be a mistake or confusion. What is said of Barna Bukov fits Boris Bukov. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 77.
- Bukov, Boris: Soviet intelligence officer, GRU. In 1939 Walter Krivitsky, a senior KGB defector, identified a Soviet intelligence officer known to Whittaker Chambers as "Peter" as Boris Bykov. In his 1939 autobiography, Krivitsky, who had been a GRU officer before shifting to the KGB in the early 1930s, also identified Bykov as the chief of GRU operations in the U.S. in 1936–1939. An entry in GRU: Dela i Liudi [GRU: Cases and People] for "Bukov (Altman) Boris Yakovlevich", lists Bukov as "Illegal station chief of Razvedupr [GRU] in the U.S.A. (1936–1939)". Likely Altman was a Jewish birth name with Bukov was a Russianized replacement. That Chambers' "Bykov" and GRU's "Bukov" are the same person is made even clearer when it is understood that Chambers told the FBI that Krivitsky had pronounced "Bykov" as "boo-koff". One should also note that the Russian Cyrillic letter "y" is pronounced with a Latin alphabet "u" sound. What is unclear is why Krivitsky (or his translator/editor in 1939) would transliterate the name as Bykov, usually pronounced "bi-koff", rather than the more phonetically accurate Bukov.²⁴ Cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks: "Jerome" ["Dzherom"]. - Camp Shelby, Mississippi: Venona USA GRU, 45.
- “Camp U” [“Lager Y”]: See “Camp Y”. The original Cyrillic Russian transliterates as “Lager U” and literally translates as “Camp U,” but in this case KGB, knowing that the Manhattan atomic project’s own designation for its facilities at Los Alamos was “Site Y”, chose to treat the Cyrillic Russian letter “Y” (which is actually the phonetic equivalent of “U” in the Latin alphabet) as the Latin “Y” rather than use the actual Cyrillic equivalent of the Latin “Y”, the letter “Й”.
- “Camp W” [“Lager W”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Hanford, Washington facilities of the Manhattan atomic project, also known as “Site W”. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 116.

- “Camp X” [“Lager' X”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Reference in a Harry Gold report of a meeting with Klaus Fuchs when Fuchs said he might be sent to Camp X, the Manhattan atomic project facility in New Mexico. (Likely this is a confusion on Fuchs’ part, in as much as the Manhattan Project had designated Los Alamos, New Mexico as Site Y or Camp Y while its facilities at Oak Ridge, Tennessee received the designation of Site X or Camp X.) “Camp X”: Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 70. Referred to simply as “X”: Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 21.
- “Camp Y” [“Lager' Y”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Los Alamos Manhattan atomic project facility. (Likely derived from the Manhattan Project’s internal designation of its facilities at Los Alamos as “Site Y”.) Vassiliev Black Notebook, 113; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 10–12, 28, 69–70.
- CAMP-1 [LAGER' -1] (cover name in Venona): Oak Ridge, TN, Manhattan atomic project facility. Camp-1 appeared in the Venona decrypts as unidentified Manhattan atomic project facility but was identified in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks as Oak Ridge. Venona New York KGB 1944, 714, 716.

- “Cheetah” [“Chita”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, Seattle, maritime and Naval intelligence. References to in 1936–1939. “Cheetah” as “Chita” appeared in the Venona decryptions as an unidentified contact on the Moscow-San Francisco channel in 1944, but it is uncertain if this 1944 “Cheetah” is “Cheetah” of the late 1930s. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 26–27, 32, 101, 173; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 136.
- CHEF [SHEF] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, a journalist. Likely a variant Venona translation for CHIEF [SHEF]. Venona New York KGB 1944, 748; Venona Special Studies, 79. Venona analysts noted that SHEKH [SHEIKH] (Venona New York KGB 1944, 537; Venona Special Studies, 79) may have been a coding error for SHEF [CHEF or CHIEF].

- CHEN (cover name in Venona): Zalmond David Franklin in 1944. Venona analysts, on the basis of what is said of CHEN’s family relations in this 26 May 1944 message, identify CHEN as Zalmond Franklin. “Chen” does not appear in the Vassiliev notebooks. However, Franklin is identified in the Vassiliev notebooks in 1944 with the cover name “Chap”, which is “Chep” in Russian. As CHAP [CHEP], this cover name also appears in Venona as an unidentified Soviet intelligence agent whose activities are fully compatible with Franklin, and is identified as Franklin herein. It may be that the 26 May 1944 appearance of CHEN in the Venona decryptions is simply a minor ciphering error for CHEP. Venona New York KGB 1944, 159; Venona Special Studies, 77.
- CHEN (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent in 1943. Venona’s CHEN of 1944 is clearly Zalmond Franklin in light of what is said of CHEN’s family situation in the single message (Venona New York KGB 1944, 159) about CHEN. Venona analysts tentatively extended the Franklin identification of CHEN of 1943, but the elements of what were said of CHEN in these 1943 messages seem a far afield from Franklin’s known activities, and Venona analysts in an annotation noted the uncertainty of the identification. Venona New York KGB 1943, 91–92, 316–17; Venona Special Studies, 77.
- Chen, Hansheng: Covert agent of the Communist Party of China from 1920s to the establishment of the People’s Republic of China in 1949. Chen operated in the United States in the 1930s. Also known as Hanshen Chen and Henshen Chen.²⁸ Vassiliev Black Notebook, 45.

- "Chester" (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Bernard Schuster. "Chester" was Schuster prior to June 1943 when KGB replaced "Chester" with "Echo", but "Chester" occasionally was still used later, likely because "Chester" originated as and remained Schuster's CPUSA party name. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 108, 151; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 10; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 23.
- "Chester" (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Robert Oppenheimer in 1944 and 1945. - “Cupid” [“Amur”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Likely Robert Sheldon Harte in 1939. Harte is not directly identified as “Cupid” in Vassiliev’s notebooks. However, he was identified as “Amur” (the Russian original of “Cupid”) in the KGB archival material brought to the West by Vasili Mitrokhin. In Vassiliev’s notebooks “Cupid” appears as a Soviet intelligence agent, assigned to anti-Trotsky work in 1939. Harte has long been suspected of links to Soviet intelligence. A young Communist, Harte infiltrated the American Trotskyist movement. Sent to - Mexico in 1940 to assist in guarding Trotsky's exile home, he opened the gates to the compound to an armed Stalinist raiding party that shot up the buildings but failed to kill Trotsky. Harte left alive with the raiders but was found dead a few days later. In 1995, an SVR history of Soviet intelligence reported that a senior KGB officer overseeing projects to assassinate Trotsky later stated that the raiders blamed the failure to kill Trotsky on Harte and killed him.³³ Vassiliev Black Notebook, 161.

- “Decree” [“Dekret”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): U.S. Lend Lease program and agency, circa 1944. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115.
- DED [GRANDFATHER] (cover name in Venona): Soviet Ambassador in Washington or the Soviet Consul General in New York. DED [GRANDFATHER] in 1942 and 1943 messages was identified by Venona analysts as Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Ambassador from December 1941 to August 1943. These messages are: Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 45; Venona New York KGB 1943, 11, 154, 268–69. However, DED [GRANDFATHER] in 1944 messages was identified as the Soviet Consul General in New York, Evgenij Kiselev rather than then Soviet ambassador Andrey Gromyko: Venona New York KGB 1944, 485–86, 492, 552–54, 687–88; Venona Special Studies, 22–23. In Vassiliev’s notebooks, a late 1944 list of cover name unambiguously identified “Grandfather” [Ded] as the consul general (Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115). However, references in the notebooks to “Grandfather” in 1943 when combined with Venona cable references to a meeting in Washington (Venona New York KGB 1943, 154) suggest the ambassador. To further confuse the matter, Kiselev is identified with the cover name DEDUSHKA [GRANDPAPA] rather than DED [GRANDFATHER] in numerous other 1944 Venona messages.
- “Ded” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Grandfather”.
- DED’S deputy (cover name in Venona): A 1943 reference thought to be to Andrey Gromyko, then Counsellor to Soviet Ambassador Litvinov. Venona New York KGB 1943, 154.
- DEDAL [DAEDALUS] (cover name in Venona): Pierre Cot. Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 17; Venona New York KGB 1943, 82, 213, 295; Venona New York KGB 1944, 576, 712; Venona Special Studies, 22.
- DEDUSHKA [GRANDPAPA] (cover name in Venona): Soviet Consul General in New York, Evgenij Kiselev. Venona New York KGB 1944, 30, 37–38, 45, 71–72, 86–87, 91–92, 96, 99–101, 106, 125–26, 137–38, 177–78, 203–04, 226–27, 287, 318, 330–31, 346–48, 385–86, 415; Venona Special Studies, 22–23.
- “Deer”: See “Dir”.
- Defense Committee: Could refer to the U.S. House or Senate Military Affairs committees, the Senate Special Committee to Investigate the National Defense Program, or the House Select Committee Investigating National Defense Migration (known as the Tolan Committee). Vassiliev Black Notebook, 43, 45.
- Defense ministry (USSR), People’s Commissariat of Defense, and State Committee on Defense: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 85; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 68; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 31; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 106.
- Defense, U.S. Department of: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 75; Vassiliev Odd Pages, 22; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 71; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 70; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 148, 152. The reference to the Department of Defense in a 1937 document (Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 70) and a 1944 document (Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 71) are likely references to the U.S. War Department in as much as the title Department of Defense was not created until 1949.
- Defense Will Not Win the War*: Book used for a Soviet intelligence cipher system. Venona Secret Writings New York/Buenos Aires, 5–6.

- “Deputy” [“Zamestitel”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Laurence Steinhardt in 1939. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 25.
- DEPUTY [ZAMESTITEL] (cover name in Venona): Henry Wallace. DEPUTY was reported in conversation with CAPTAIN/Roosevelt at the 1943 TRIDENT conference. Venona analysts judged Henry Wallace the most likely candidate with Harry Hopkins as a less likely possibility. In light of “‘Captain’s’ deputy” in Vassiliev’s notebooks referring to Wallace, the former is correct. Venona New York KGB 1943, 66.
- Deputy [zamestitel] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Henry Wallace. As the “deputy” in “Captain’s” deputy [zamestitel] “Kapitana”. Vassiliev’s notebooks do not directly identify “Captain’s” deputy as Wallace, but the reference to Boris Morros [“Frost”] meeting “Captain’s” deputy in San Francisco when the latter was on his way to the USSR coincides with Wallace’s trip to the Soviet far east via San Francisco. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 15; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 17.

- Emery, Edith: Courier in the 1930s for a CPUSA-GRU network and candidate for KGB courier "Squirrel" in the 1940s. Emery had been born in Hungary in 1905 and came to the U.S. in 1930 as an exchange student at Bryn Mawr and got a M.A. there in 1931 and then studied economics at the Brookings Institution. In the U.S. she used the names Andrea Emery (her Hungarian given name was "Ondra") and Edith Emery. She went to Hungary in 1932 to obtain a divorce from her Hungarian husband, returned to the U.S. in 1932 and taught economics at Fordham and Bennington. In 1933 she married journalist Edmund Stevens and became a U.S. citizen. She completed a Ph.D. in economics at Columbia and worked as an economist for the New Deal's Resettlement Administration and later for the Bureau of Indian Affairs. In 1935 she divorced Stevens and in 1936 married Roy Hudson, a senior official of the CPUSA. Emery worked in the CPUSA Washington underground in the mid-1930s. When Whittaker Chambers described the activities of his CPUSA-GRU network in the mid-1930s to the FBI, he mentioned one woman in contact with the network whose name he remembered as "Andre Embrey" and whom he described as Hungarian, the girlfriend of CPUSA official Roy Hudson, and a secret Communist who worked for a government agency. Chambers identified a picture of Emery as the woman he

- had remembered as Embrey.⁴¹ See the entry for “Squirrel” for a discussion of her candidacy for that cover name. As Emery: Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 72–73. As “Squirrel”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 135–36; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 91.
- Emigres: Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Guests”. As “Guests”: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 116.
- EMILIYA [ĖMILIYA] (cover name in Venona): Helen Lowry (Akhmerova). Unidentified by Venona analysts but EMILIYA in Venona earlier had the cover name STELLA. “Stella” was identified in Vassiliev’s notebooks as Lowry. In Vassiliev’s notebooks the cover name “Stella” was changed to “Emma”. Venona’s EMILIYA is likely a minor misdeciphering of “Emma”. Venona New York KGB 1944, 462–63; Venona Special Studies, 69, 82, 174.
- “Emir” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Dmitri Bukhartsev. Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 46–47, 49.
- “Emma” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Helen Lowry. The New York KGB station proposed changing Lowry’s cover name from “Stella” to “Emma” in September 1944, but it does not appear that this change was adopted. “Stella” continued to appear as Lowry’s cover name into 1945. New York KGB station’s proposed cover name shifts of 2 September 1944 are in the Vassiliev White Notebook #1, p. 55 and in the Venona decryption 1251, New York to Moscow, 2 September 1944 (Venona New York KGB 1944, 462–63). The substantive text is nearly identical, indicating that Alexander Vassiliev made his notebook entry from a copy of the cable sent to Moscow. One minor difference between Vassiliev’s notes and the cable as deciphered by Venona analysts is that Vassiliev’s notes have the New York station proposing changing “Stella” to “Emma” while Venona analysts’ deciphered version has the New York station suggesting changing STELLA to EMILIYA. The difference between “Emma” and EMILIYA is likely a product of a minor error in Venona analysts’ recreation of the KGB code book. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 55.

- “Emulsion” [Emul’siya] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, a technical intelligence at Eastman Kodak 1938, and unidentified technical intelligence source in 1943, probably aviation related. Likely but not certainly these two “Emulsions” are the same. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 98, 101, 110, 117; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 109, 112–13.
- EMULSION [EMUL’SIYA and ĖMUL’SIYA] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source in the aviation industry, later SIGNAL. Venona New York KGB 1943, 17–18; Venona New York KGB 1944, 89–90, 273, 275, 289–90, 542–43; Venona Special Studies, 67, 82, 176.
- “Emulsion’s” brother (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, 1938, brother of “Emulsion”. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 101. In 1943 an unidentified source cover named “Brother” appears (Vassiliev Black Notebook, 110, 117; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 113) associated with “Emulsion” and may be “Emulsion’s” brother renamed.

- Fedosimov, Pavel Ivanovich, cover name MAY in the Venona decryptions: Mistaken references. Venona analysts initially believed that the real name behind the cover name MAY [MAJ], acting chief of the KGB New York Station for part of 1944 and 1945, was Pavel Fedosimov, a diplomat at the New York consulate. Eventually, however, Venona analysts realized that this was an error and that MAY was Stepan Apresyan, another Soviet diplomat at the New York consulate who in 1945 transferred to the San Francisco consulate (with the MAY cover name simultaneously disappearing from the New York KGB message traffic and appearing in San Francisco traffic). Fedosimov’s actual cover name, it turned out, was STEPAN. Venona analysts corrected a number of the deciphered Venona messages where MAY was identified as Fedosimov, but others were not corrected. The deciphered messages were for internal use by analysts, all of whom knew of the change, so likely correcting all of them was regarded as of little value. There are a large number of messages where MAY appears because Apresyan was the acting chief of the KGB New York station for part of 1944 and 1945 and during that period most outgoing messages were signed by him and most incoming messages were addressed to him. Consequently, all messages where MAY [MAJ] was identified as Fedosimov should be understood as references to Apresyan, whether corrected or not. Only messages where Fedosimov is identified with the cover name STEPAN are correctly attributed. (See the separate Fedosimov/STEPAN entry.) The following Fedosimov references are MAY [MAJ] references that should be understood as actually referencing Apresyan: Venona New York KGB 1944, 26, 29–30, 38, 44–46, 48, 50–51, 57, 62–63, 72, 74, 76, 78, 83, 85, 88, 90, 92–93, 98, 100–101, 109, 112, 115–16, 120, 129, 138, 142, 151, 164, 178, 180, 186–87, 196, 198, 201–2, 205, 207, 213, 220, 226, 229–30, 241, 257, 277, 284, 287, 297, 300, 307, 309, 323, 338, 340, 343, 345, 351, 379, 391, 393, 407, 409, 411, 413 (spelled Fedocimov), 415–17, 420–21, 427, 433, 435, 437, 439, 441–42, 445, 448, 450, 457, 460, 473, 479–80, 487, 489, 495, 501, 505, 530, 536, 541, 545, 551, 555, 565, 573, 575, 595, 602, 612, 641, 654, 656, 658, 663, 671, 674, 686, 688, 693, 710–11, 718, 722, 726, 734, 736, 749, 753–54, 761, 765, 769–70, 773, 776, 779; Venona New York KGB 1945, 13, 19, 34, 45, 58, 62.

Fedosimov, Pavel Ivanovich, Cover name STEPAN in the Venona decryptions: Soviet intelligence officer. Cover name in Venona: STEPAN. (Venona analysts also initially attributed the cover name MAY [MAJ] to Fedosimov but eventually judged this an error and assigned MAY [MAJ] to Stepan Apresyan. See separate entry about the Fedosimov/MAY confusion.) Likely, but not certainly, this is the same “Stepan” in Vassiliev’s notebooks who is the acting chief of the New York station in 1947–1948. As Fedosimov: Venona New York KGB 1944, 30, 45, 226, 257, 415, 473; Venona Special Studies, 69. Finestone, Maxwell: Candidate for the cover name “Plumb” in Vassiliev’s notebooks. In 1947 Julius Rosenberg revived his WWII apparatus for the KGB but sought new contacts as well. In 1948 Rosenberg is described as cultivating “Plumb” who was described as an active student Communist at an unidentified college. After Julius Rosenberg was arrested, a cell mate informant told the FBI that Julius Rosenberg has identified Finestone as someone he had recruited. Interviewed by the FBI, Finestone admitted that he had been a young Communist at Cornell University in the late 1940s and knew Julius Rosenberg but claimed he had dropped out the the party his senior year (1949) because of the pressure of school work and had no

- identify and revived the KGB's illegal station. At that time he was using the false identify of Emil Goldfus. When his assistant, Reino Hayhanen, defected to the United States in 1957, Fisher was arrested. The FBI knew his Goldfus identify was false, and Fisher told the FBI his real name was Rudolf Abel, the name of a fellow KGB officer and colleague of Fisher's during the war. (Possibly this was a way of signally the KGB that he was not cooperating with the FBI.) Fisher, under the name of Rudolf Abel, was convicted and sentenced to thirty years in prison. However, in 1962 he was exchanged for the CIA pilot Gary Powers, shot down on a reconnaissance mission over the USSR. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 178.

Grainham: See Greinham.

“Grandfather” [Ded] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): USSR Consul General in New York or the USSR’s ambassador in Washington. “Grandfather” was identified in the Venona decryptions as the Soviet Consul General in New York and also as possibly the USSR’s ambassador. At one place in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks “Grandfather” is clearly designated as the Soviet consul general in New York, but another occurrence when combined with Venona cable references to a meeting in Washington (Venona New York KGB 1943, 154) suggest the ambassador. “Grandfather” as Consul General in New York: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115. “Grandfather” as possibly the Soviet ambassador: Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 7.

GRANDFATHER [DED] (cover name in Venona): Soviet Ambassador in Washington or the Soviet Consul General in New York. GRANDFATHER [DED] in 1942 and 1943 messages was identified by Venona analysts as Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Ambassador from December 1941 to August 1943. These messages are: Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 45; Venona New York KGB 1943, 11, 154, 268–69. However, GRANDFATHER [DED] in 1944 messages were identified as the Soviet Consul General in New York, Evgeni Kiselev rather than then Soviet ambassador Andrey Gromyko: Venona New York KGB 1944, 485–86, 492, 552–54, 687–88; Venona Special Studies, 22–23. In Vassiliev’s notebooks, a late 1944 list of cover name unambiguously identified “Grandfather” [“Ded”] as the consul general (Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115). However, references in the notebooks to “Grandfather” in 1943 when combined with Venona cable references to a meeting in Washington (Venona New York KGB 1943, 154) suggest the ambassador. To further confuse the matter, Kiselev is identified with the cover name DEDUSHKA [GRANDPAPA] rather than DED [GRANDFATHER] in numerous other 1944 Venona messages.

GRANDPAPA [DEDUSHKA] (cover name in Venona): Soviet Consul General in New York, Evgeni Kiselev. Venona New York KGB 1944, 30, 37, 45, 71, 86–87, 91, 96, 99, 101, 106–7, 125–26, 137, 177, 204, 226–27, 287, 318, 330–31, 346, 348, 385, 415, 439; Venona Special Studies, 22–23.

GRANT (cover name in Venona): Unidentified. A Venona project study suggest this might be a real name and a reference to Ulysses S. Grant III. Grant, an Army Major General, directed U.S. civil defense in WWII. This appears very uncertain. Venona New York KGB 1944, 293–94; Venona Special Studies, 19.

GRANT (cover name in Venona): Nikolay Zabotin. Venona Ottawa GRU, 2–3, 5–12.

Hiss, Alger: Soviet intelligence source/agent. Government lawyer and senior American State Department official. Convicted of perjury in 1950 for denying cooperation with Soviet intelligence in 1938.⁶⁴ Cover names in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Jurist” (1936), “Ales” (1945), and “Leonard” (1948–1950). Cover name in Venona: ALES. Work name by which Harold Glasser referred to ‘Ales’/Hiss when communicating with KGB, “Bob”. As Hiss: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 51, 73, 77, 152 (misidentified as Robert Hiss, may be Donald Hiss); Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 57, 60, 78, 98, 118–19; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 4–5; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 79; Venona USA GRU, 130 (may be Donald Hiss). Holman, Rufus: U.S. Senator, 1939–1945 (R. OR). Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 39.

Holmes, ?: State Department official, possibly Julius Cecil Holmes. Venona New York KGB 1945, 183.

Holt, Claire: OSS staff. Venona analysts regarded Holt as a candidate for the cover name MUSE. Alexander Vassiliev's notebooks, however, establish that "Muse" was another OSS staffer, Helen Tenney. Venona Special Studies, 49.

"Home" [Dom] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): USSR, 1941–1945, particularly the KGB headquarters. (This designates a formal reference to "Home" and not a casual one to home as in back home in the USSR.) Vassiliev Black Notebook, 122, 124, 190; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 29, 32–33, 35–36, 69, 115, 120; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 44.

HOME [DOM] (cover name in Venona): KGB headquarters in Moscow, the Center. DOM as the cover name for the KGB headquarters was translated by the Venona project as HOUSE. However, in one message Venona analysts translated DOM as "home" but appeared not to have recognized from the context that this was the cover name HOUSE for the KGB headquarters rather than a simple reference to "home" in the sense of back home in the USSR. Venona New York KGB 1944, 240.

"Homer" [Gomer] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Donald Maclean. Unidentified in Vassiliev's notebooks but identified in Venona as Maclean. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 48, 51, 53, 57, 69–

- HORUS [GOR] (cover name in Venona): Joseph Gregg. Unidentified by Venona analysts but identified in Vassiliev's notebooks as Gregg. Venona New York KGB 1943, 207, 228, 276.
- Horvitz, Louis: A 16 August 1944 KGB message from New York to Moscow reports that its CPUSA liaison, ECKO/Schuster, had at Soviet direction located two safe houses for KGB use, the apartments of "Louis D. Horvitz" and "Paul Bernay". The original Russian provided for the last names transliterated as "Liu D. Gorvits" and "Paul Bernē". That these are decoding and translation garbles for Louis Horvitz and Paul Burns is indicated by a plain text memo found in the archives of the Communist International, a memo from General Fitin, chief of KGB foreign intelligence requesting background information on two American Communists: Louis Horvitz and Paul Burns (Fitin to Dimitrov, 19 August 1944, Archive of the Dimitrov Secretariat of the Comintern, Russian State Archive of Socio-Political History, 495–74–485). Venona New York KGB 1944, 422.

- "Hudson" [Gudzon] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence agent/informant, 1943–45. Used as a telephone contact point between Klaus Fuchs and Harry Gold in 1945. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 134; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 8, 91. It is possible that "Hudson" at Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 91 is not "Hudson" the cover name of an unidentified Soviet agent but a reference to Roy Hudson.
- HUDSON [GUDZON] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent. HUDSON appeared in the Venona decryptions as unidentified in 1944 and his cover name in the

- Venona decryptions was changed to JOHN in October 1944. It is not clear, however, that the cover name change was implemented in as much as JOHN does not appear subsequently while “Hudson” does appear at later dates in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks. HUDSON’s activities included work in the KGB’s “first line” (political intelligence), placing Soviet sources in Jewish and Zionist organizations, and maintaining liaison with various Soviet sources. Venona New York KGB 1944, 82, 190, 473, 543; Venona Special Studies, 20, 176.

- “Islander” (cover names in Vassiliev notebooks): Unclear cover name. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 21. At other points in the notebooks, “Island” is a code-name for Great Britain, and an “Islander” is a Briton. However, in this case the sentence reads “. . . foreign delegations, in particular the Islander, German, Chinese, and English ones”, and the English are listed separately from “Islander”. Possibly this is just a repetitive mistake in the original document but possibly it refers to another country.

- JURIST [YURIST] (cover name in Venona): Harry Dexter White, 1944. Venona New York KGB 1944, 34, 374–79; Venona Special Studies, 84.
- “Jurist’s” wife (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Anne Terry White, wife of Harry D. White. In a 27 June 1945 report by a KGB officer, “Bogdan”, on a meeting with Charles Kramer, Kramer was asked of his work in the CPUSA underground in Washington in the 1930s. Bogdan reported, “On Cde. Vadim’s assignment, I asked him to remember the names of those individuals whom he handled while working as a courier agent for Steve (at the time, he handled ‘Jurist’s’ wife)”. (Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 96) “Steve” was the cover name of Josef Peters, chief of the CPUSA covert apparatus in the mid-1930s. “Jurist” was the cover name for Harry Dexter White from 1941 to August 1944, it was changed to “Lawyer” in August 1944 then changed to “Richard” in September 1944, and appeared as “Reed” in July 1945. “Jurist” was an obsolete cover name for White at the time of “Bogdan’s” report, but that “Jurist”/White is likely referenced is supported by a 22 June 1945 “Vadim”/Gorsky cable to Moscow Center “At one time, M. [“Mole”/Kramer] had also worked on the connection between “Peter” [Josef Peters] and “Richard” [H.D. White] (through “R’s” wife)”. (Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 98) Here Kramer is unambiguously identified as a link between Josef Peters and Harry White’s wife. “Bogdan’s” reference to “Jurist’s wife” appears to have been simply an obsolete use of White’s cover name prior to “Richard”. Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 96.

- “Karl” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Robert Tselnis, likely a pseudonym for Whittaker Chambers.⁷⁰ Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 46, 65.
- KARL (cover name in Venona): William Stapler. “Karl” was a Soviet intelligence source/agent, technical line, 1944–1945, earlier with the cover name RAY [SKAT]. In Vassiliev’s notebooks “Karl”, earlier “Ray”, was described as a “chemical engineer at the Hercules Powder Company. With us since ’34”. William Stapler was an employee of Hercules Powder Company. Former KGB agent Thomas Black identified Stapler as a Soviet industrial espionage source. Black’s description of Stapler’s activities matches the activities of the Soviet source “Ray” and “Karl” in Vassiliev’s notebooks. KARL and RAY [SKAT] also appear in the Venona decryptions, Venona analysts identified the real name, but it was redacted when Venona was released. However, a 1951 FBI memo reviewing Venona noted that nine persons that Venona demonstrated were assisting Soviet espionage were deceased. One of those listed as deceased was Stapler. Taken together this evidence indicates that the redacted name in the Venona decryptions for KARL and RAY [SKAT] was William Stapler.⁷¹ Venona New York KGB 1944, 542–43, 628; Venona Special Studies, 34, 68, 176.
- “Karl” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): William Stapler. Prior to October 1944 designated as “Ray”. Unidentified in Vassiliev’s notebooks but a review of KARL and RAY [SKAT] in Venona along with what is said of “Karl” and “Ray” in Vassiliev’s notebooks identify Stapler. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 57, 69, 119, 132, 135–36.
- KARL (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, West Coast 1945. Venona analysts thought this might be KARL/Stapler, but that is only a possibility. Venona San Francisco KGB, 264; Venona Special Studies, 103.

70. Tselnis is described as a GRU group handler in late 1930s who defected. The passage on Tselnis is reported as a GRU response to a query from KGB as to the identify of the GRU agent “Karl”. The description of “Karl”/Tselnis’s activities fits Chambers, and “Karl” is elsewhere in the notebooks identified as Chambers. Tselnis, translated as Zelnis, is also identified in Russian intelligence literature as a GRU agent with additional characteristics that fit Chambers. Mikhail Boltunov, Razvedchiki, Izmenivshie Mir [The Intelligence Officers Who Changed the World] (Moscow, Russia: Algorhythm, 2009), 109. The Russian historian Svetlana Chervonnaya interviewed Boltunov and provided additional details of Zelnis that, although garbled and confused, point to Zelnis being a Chambers pseudonym. - “Kin” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Gerhard Fuchs, 1951. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 92.
- KIN [KEEN] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified or possibly Stephen Urewich in October and November 1944. An October 1944 message changes the cover name RYBOLOV [FISHERMAN or OSPREY] to KEEN [KIN] (Venona New York KGB 1944, 542). KEEN then appears in a November message as a group leader (Venona New York KGB 1944, 676). But in September there was a message shifting RYBOLOV to BLOCK [BLOC] (Venona New York KGB 1944, 462–63), and in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks “Block” (earlier “Rybolov”) is identified as Urewich. Urewich, however, was a technical source and did not appear as a group leader, and appeared as “Block” in 1945. Consequently, it is not clear that KEEN, earlier RYBOLOV was Urewich. Venona New York KGB 1944, 274, 542, 676–77; Venona Special Studies, 35, 64, 176.
- KIN [KEEN] (cover name in Venona): Enos Regnet Wicher after January 1945. Venona New York KGB 1945, 42, 209–10; Venona Special Studies, 35.

- MAJ [MAY] (cover name in Venona): Stepan Zakharovich Apresyan. Venona analysts initially believed that the real name behind the cover name MAY [MAJ], acting chief of the KGB New York Station for part of 1944 and 1945, was Pavel Fedosimov, a diplomat at the New York consulate. Eventually, however, Venona analysts realized that this was an error and that MAY was Stepan Apresyan, another Soviet diplomat at the New York consulate who in 1945 transferred to the San Francisco consulate (with the MAY cover name simultaneously disappearing from the New York KGB message traffic and appeared in San Francisco traffic). In the decrypted messages

- occasionally Venona analysts corrected the footnotes misidentifying MAY as Fedosimov but most were left unchanged because the small staff of Venona analysts were aware of the situation and did not need to go back and physically alter each note. Consequently, all MAJ [MAY] references should be regarded as Apresyan even if the footnote identifies the real name as Fedosimov. Venona New York KGB 1944, 23, 26, 29–30, 34–35, 37–40, 42–52, 54–57, 59–63, 65–66, 68, 72–80, 82–85, 87–93, 96–102, 106, 108–12, 114–22, 125, 129, 135, 137–38, 140–44, 150–53, 155–57, 159, 163–64, 166, 168–70, 173, 176–78, 180–81, 185–91, 195–98, 200–207, 209, 211–13, 216, 219–22, 224–30, 232–34, 236–37, 240–41, 245–49, 252–55, 257–61, 263, 267–69, 274–77, 284, 287, 290, 293, 297–98, 300, 304, 307–10, 313–14, 317–20, 323, 325, 329, 331, 333–36, 338, 340–43, 345–48, 350–51, 353, 358, 361, 364, 366, 369–72, 379–84, 386, 390–94, 397, 403–5, 407, 409–11, 413–21, 424–25, 427, 433–35, 437–42, 445–48, 450–52, 454–57, 460, 462–63, 465–67, 470, 473–75, 479–81, 483–84, 486–92, 494–95, 497, 500–505, 510–16, 520–21, 523, 525–26, 528–33, 536, 540–42, 544–47, 549–51, 553–55, 557, 559–60, 562, 564–65, 568–70, 572–76, 578–81, 584, 586, 588, 590, 592–93, 595–96, 598–608, 611–14, 618–20, 622, 625–28, 630, 633, 636, 638, 640–41, 644, 649–50, 652–54, 656, 658–60, 663, 665, 667–68, 670–71, 673–74, 677–78, 683, 686–88, 690, 692–93, 697, 700–702, 704, 709–11, 713, 717–19, 722, 726, 730–31, 733–37, 741, 744, 748–49, 752–54, 756–58, 761, 764–73, 779; Venona New York KGB 1945, 2–4, 6, 9–10, 12–13, 15–16, 19, 22–23, 26, 29, 32–36, 39–46, 49–52, 54, 57–58, 61–62, 84, 90, 93, 104, 107–8, 110, 117, 123–24, 144–45; Venona San Francisco KGB, 100, 168, 185, 194, 196, 211–12, 215, 221–22, 224–26, 228–29, 233, 237, 244, 248, 254–55, 258–59, 263–64, 268, 270, 276, 287, 289–90, 292–93, 295–97, 299–301, 304–5, 311; Venona Special Studies, 29, 44, 105.

- MARGARITA (cover name in Venona): Soviet intelligence source/agent. Venona analysts identified MARGARITA but NSA redacted the name upon release of the Venona decryptions. A footnote on her by Venona analysts described her as having been born in American, emigrating in 1933 with her Finnish-American parents to the Karelian region of the USSR, later working for the English-language Moscow Daily News, but returning to the USA and from 1942 to 1945 working for the U.S. Censorship office and for UNRRA. The decrypted messages suggest that KGB foreign intelligence came to be suspicious of her. A candidate for MARGARITA is Paula Filpus. If Filpus was MARGARITA the basis for suspicion may well have been when KGB foreign intelligence realized that in 1938 the internal security arm of the KGB executed her parents during Stalin’s purge of Karelia. Venona New York KGB 1944, 108–9, 508, 519–21, 527–28, 550–51, 558–60; Venona Special Studies, 46.

- Material password (tradecraft term): A recognition signal, an object of some sort known to the source and kept at Moscow Center or at a KGB station. Should the need arise for a KGB officer/agent unknown to the source need to approach him, then the signature object could be carried by the officer/agent and used to establish his bone fides. A well know signature of this sort was the torn Jell-O box panel used by KGB courier Harry Gold to establish his bone fides with David Greenglass when meeting him for the first time. Alternately, the material recognition signal might be to wear a tie of a certain color or carry a certain ordinary object in a specified hand.

- MAY [MAJ] (cover name in Venona): Stepan Zakharovich Apresyan. Venona analysts initially believed that the real name behind the cover name MAY [MAJ], acting chief of the KGB New York Station for part of 1944 and 1945, was Pavel Fedosimov, a diplomat at the New York consulate. Eventually, however, Venona analysts realized that this was an error and that MAY was Stepan

- Apresyan, another Soviet diplomat at the New York consulate who in 1945 transferred to the San Francisco consulate (with the MAY cover name simultaneously disappearing from the New York KGB message traffic and appearing in San Francisco traffic). In the decrypted messages occasionally Venona analysts corrected the footnotes misidentifying MAY as Fedosimov but most were left unchanged because the small staff of Venona analysts were aware of the situation and did not need to go back and physically alter each note. Consequently, all MAJ [MAY] references should be regarded as Apresyan even if the footnote identifies the real name as Fedosimov. Venona New York KGB 1944, 23, 27–28, 30, 34, 37, 40, 42, 45–47, 51–52, 54, 56, 60–63, 65, 68, 73, 75–77, 79–84, 88–89, 91, 96, 98–99, 101–2, 106–8, 114, 116, 118–119, 121, 125–26, 129, 132, 134–35, 137, 142–43, 150, 153, 155–60, 163, 168–71, 176–77, 180, 185–90, 193, 195, 197, 200, 202, 204–8, 211–12, 216, 218–19, 221, 224, 226–27, 230, 233–36, 240, 246, 248, 252–55, 257, 260, 263–64, 267, 269–70, 275, 282–87, 290, 293–94, 297–98, 304, 307, 313, 317, 319, 323, 325–26, 329, 331, 333–34, 338, 340–42, 345–46, 348, 350, 353, 357–59, 361–62, 364, 366, 369, 372–73, 379–81, 383, 386, 388, 390, 392, 394–96, 403–4, 407, 409, 411, 413, 415–19, 421, 424, 427, 432–34, 437–38, 440, 442, 446–47, 450–51, 453, 455–57, 460, 463, 465, 467, 470–71, 474, 479–81, 484, 486, 488, 490, 492, 494, 497, 500, 503–4, 511, 513–14, 516, 521, 523–24, 526, 529, 531, 536, 540–41, 543–44, 546, 549–50, 554–55, 557–60, 562–64, 568, 570–72, 574, 576, 578, 581, 584–86, 588, 590, 592–93, 595, 601, 607–9, 611, 618–20, 622–23, 626, 628, 630, 633, 636–39, 642, 650, 652–53, 658–59, 663, 665, 668, 670–71, 673, 683, 687, 692, 695, 700, 702–4, 709–10, 713, 717, 719, 722, 726, 731–33, 735, 744–45, 748, 752, 757–58, 761, 765, 767–68, 770–72, 776–77; Venona New York KGB 1945, 2, 4–6, 9, 12, 15–16, 19–20, 22, 26, 29, 33, 39–40, 42–43, 46, 52, 54, 57, 60–61, 66–67, 84, 90, 93–94, 100–101, 104, 107–8, 110–11, 117–18, 124; Venona San Francisco KGB, 194, 196, 211, 215, 221–22, 224–26, 229, 237, 244, 248, 254–55, 258, 263–64, 268, 270, 276, 287, 289, 292, 295–97, 311; Venona Special Studies, 44, 105, 131, 133, 141, 143, 146, 153, 165–68, 175–76, 179–80, 187.

- “Mer” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Iskhak Akhmerov, 1942–1944. KGB illegal officer Iskhak Akhmerov was referred to in Vassiliev’s notebooks in Russian Cyrillic as both “Mep” and “Məp”, words so phonetically close that both are transliterated under the BGN/PCGN transliterations system identically as “Mer”. Mep means nothing in Russian while Məp means “Mayor” Whether this use of two phonetically close cryptonyms for the same person was a product of confusion on the part of KGB cipher clerks, an artifact of the ciphering system, or two distinct cryptonyms for the same person is unclear. To reduce confusion, in Vassiliev’s notebooks the transliteration “Mer” is used for both. “Mep”/“Mer” and “Məp”/“Mayor” both occur in the Venona decryptions as cover-names for Akhmerov. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 64–65; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 13–16, 44–45, 66–70, 86, 137n28; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 1–8, 36–37; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 6, 8–15, 33, 37–38, 45, 53–55, 57, 87, 106, 152; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 42; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 13; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 28–29, 32–33, 40, 49, 73, 78.

- Neighbor [Sosed] or Neighbors [Sosed] in Vassiliev’s notebooks and NEIGHBOR and NEIGHBOUR [SOSED] and NEIGHBORS and NEIGHBOURS [SOSEDI] in the Venona messages: Term used by the three Soviet intelligence agencies (KGB, GRU, and Naval GRU) to refer to each other. The term apparently derived from the KGB and the GRU occupying nearby buildings in Moscow in the early 1920s. GRU later moved across the city, but the term stuck. Sometimes the KGB distinguished the Red Army’s military intelligence, GRU, from Soviet naval intelligence, Naval GRU, by referring to the former as the “MILITARY NEIGHBORS”, “LAND NEIGHBORS” or “NEARER NEIGHBORS” and the latter as the “NAVAL NEIGHBORS”, “MARITIME NEIGHBORS” or “DISTANT NEIGHBORS.” (In regard to a Naval GRU reference to the DISTANT NEIGHBORS at Venona USA Naval GRU, 317, Venona analysts thought this might be a reference to the People’s Commissariat of Foreign Affairs, but a reference to the KGB appears more likely.) Neighbor or Neighbors in all variations: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 51, 63, 67, 99, 111, 126; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 10–11, 29, 38, 53, 115, 118, 138; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 3–4, 13, 37, 101, 111; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 15, 34, 45–46, 58–59, 67–68, 90, 118–19; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 2, 8–12, 67, 99; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 5, 10, 29, 40, 81, 83; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 59–60, 77, 111; Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 46–47, 73; Venona New York KGB 1943, 26, 144, 187–88, 201, 221; Venona New York KGB 1944, 30, 32–33, 46, 77, 192, 212, 226, 290, 297, 339–40, 345, 418, 456, 481, 527–588, 620, 634, 677–78, 703, 746, 758; Venona New York KGB 1945, 46, 53–54, 64–65, 97–98, 149; Venona Washington KGB, 20; Venona San Francisco KGB, 26, 62, 118, 266, 294; Venona USA GRU, 46–47, 90–91, 130; Venona USA Naval GRU, 4, 7–8, 26–27, 102, 129, 169–70, 187–88, 209–11, 234, 262, 289, 302–3, 313, 317, 355–56; Venona USA Diplomatic, 50, 52–53, 78–80.

- PURSER [KAZNACHEJ] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent with whom the KGB was attempting to reestablish contact in 1944. Venona New York KGB 1944, 110; Venona Special Studies, 32.
- Pushkov, ?: Unidentified. Venona USA Naval GRU, 66.
- Putnam, ?: Described as a chemist who gave Jacob Golos his scientific paper on how to extract gold from sea water and asked him to send it to USSR. Possibly G. L. Putnam. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 99.
- “Puzzle”: See “Riddle”.
- “P.Vinogradov”: Soviet ship. Venona New York KGB 1944, 360.
- Pyatnitsky, Osip: Leading Bolshevik and VKP(b) representative on the IKKI. Executed in 1938. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 1, 3, 66.
- “Quantum” [Kvant] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Boris Podolsky. While Vassiliev’s notebooks do not directly identify Podolsky as “Quantum”, the ’s notebooks state that Podolsky “approached the [Soviet] embassy with a proposal to go to the Soviet Union to work on the problem of Uranium-235,” a description that matches the separate description of “Quantum’s” proposals to Soviet intelligence officers posing as senior diplomats. QUANTUM also appeared in the Venona decryptions as an unidentified Soviet intelligence source who in mid-1943 provided atomic information to Soviet intelligence officers posing as diplomats. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 6–7.
- QUANTUM [KVANT] (cover name in Venona): Boris Podolsky. Unidentified by Venona analysts but the information about Podolsky and “Quantum” in Vassiliev’s notebooks along with the Venona decryptions is sufficient to identify QUANTUM as Podolsky. Venona New York KGB 1943, 154, 169, 320; Venona Special Studies, 35.
- Quebec Conference of 1944: Meeting of Churchill, Roosevelt, and other Anglo-American officials regarding war strategy. Venona New York KGB 1944, 464, 469, 515, 741, 767; Venona Special Studies, 130, 159.
- “Queen” [Ferz'] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, recruited in 1940, out of contact early 1941. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 174.
- QUEEN [FERZ']: Possible cover name in Venona, 1944. See partial decryption FE.... Venona New York KGB 1944, 747.
- “Quid” [Kvid] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Engelbert Broda in 1945. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 29.
- R. (cover name in Venona): Eavesdropping [fodslushivaviye]. Personal code used by MAJ/Apresyan. Venona New York KGB 1944, 193.

- R.: Initial of an unidentified person who failed to make a meeting. Venona San Francisco KGB, 278.
- “R’s” wife: “Richard’s” wife: Anne Terry White. Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 98.
- RA [KA] and R.A. [K.A.]: Red Army. Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 125; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 67, 77; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 41.
- “Rab” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Slave”.
- Rabbit, ?: Unidentified. Venona New York KGB 1944, 686.
- “Rabbit”: See “Hare”.
- Rabinovich, Grigory L.: Also known as Gregory Rabinowitz and Gregory Rabinowich. Medical doctor and KGB officer sent to the U.S., 1933–1939, under Russian Red Cross cover to supervise penetration of the Trotskyist movement. Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Beam” (1933–1934) and “Harry” (1937–1939). As Rabinovich: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 78; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 127, 145. As “Beam”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 1, 3. As “Harry”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 27, 55, 78, 100, 161, 165, 174; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 139, 145.
- Rabis: Union of Art Workers, USSR. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 33–34.
- Rabkin, ?: Name in the Whalen documents, 1930. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 74.
- RACHEL [RASHEL'] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, associated with some operation in or involving Belgium. Venona New York KGB 1943, 126; Venona Special Studies, 59.
- Rachmaninoff, Sergey: Russian composer and pianist. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 53.
- Radar: Venona New York KGB 1943, 205, 333–34; Venona New York KGB 1944, 716; Venona San Francisco KGB, 74, 96 SF.
- Radek, Karl: Bolshevik leader and Cominternist. Arrested in Stalin’s Terror in 1937 and died in the GULAG. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 10, 68.
- Radiation Laboratory: University of California, Berkely, facility founded by Ernest Lawrence as a site for physics research centered around the cyclotron. Site of Manhattan atomic Project research in WWII. Venona USA GRU, 172.
- “Radio-Announcer” [“Diktor”] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): William Donovan. Black Notebook, 88; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 7, 31–32, 85, 115; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 15, 110.
- RADIO-ANNOUNCER and RADIO ANNOUNCER [DIKTOR] (cover name in Venona): William Donovan. Venona New York KGB 1944, 80–81, 298, 523–24, 567–69; Venona New York KGB 1945, 70; Venona Special Studies, 24.
- Radio Corporation of America (RCA, R.C.A.): Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Hydro”. As Radio Corporation of America and RCA: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 111; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 116; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 108; Venona USA Naval GRU, 11, 302, 384; Venona USA Trade, 19. As “Hydro”: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 120; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 116.
- “Radio Station” [Ratsiya] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Initially “Donovan’s Committee”, i.e., the Office of the Coordinator of Information (OCI), late 1941 and the first half of 1942. After the Office of the Coordinator of Information was split into OSS and OWI in June 1942, “Radio Station” became the cover name for OWI while “Cabin” became the cover name for OSS.
- “Radio Station”/OCI: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 43; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 29, 31.
- “Radio Stations”/OWI: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 2, 29, 77, 115; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 134.
- “Raduga” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Rainbow”.

- Raev, Aleksandr Andreevich: Soviet intelligence officer. Possibly the pseudonym of KGB officer Alexander Rogov.¹²³ Cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks: "Light". Cover name in Venona: LIGHT [SVET]. As Raev: Venona New York KGB 1944, 336, 628, 716; Venona Special Studies, 65. As "Light": Vassiliev Black Notebook, 119, 124, 132–33, 135–36; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 109, 118. As LIGHT [SVET]: Venona New York KGB 1944, 335–36, 628, 697, 714–16; Venona New York KGB 1945, 47, 84; Venona Special Studies, 65.
- RAFAIL (cover name in Venona): Luis Arenal. Venona New York KGB 1943, 279; Venona Special Studies, 59.
- "Raid" [Reyd] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Victor Perlo. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 48, 51, 55, 57, 67, 78, 89–90; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 11, 57; Vassiliev White Notebook #2, 4, 6, 8–10, 18–19, 30, 33; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 46–47, 51–53, 55–56, 65–66, 68–78, 80, 82–84, 86, 88, 90–93, 98, 107, 125, 128, 130; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 40–41, 45, 53–54, 56, 62, 64, 66, 68, 72, 74–75; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 119.
- RAIDER [REJDER] (cover name in Venona): Victor Perlo. (Perlo was identified in Vassiliev's notebooks as "Raid" rather than "Raider". The difference between Venona's "Raider" and "Raid" given in Vassiliev's notebooks is likely a matter of Venona code breakers making a minor error in reconstructing the KGB code book.) Venona New York KGB 1944, 113, 172, 174, 306–7, 446; Venona New York KGB 1945, 45; Venona Washington KGB, 22, 57–58, 63; Venona Special Studies, 59, 126.
- RAILWAY WORKER [ZHELEZNODOROZHNIK] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified. Venona analysts were unsure if this was a true cover name or a description of a person used to identify him. Venona New York KGB 1944, 365–66; Venona Special Studies, 27.
- Rain, Bill: Described as the pseudonym of Enos Regnet Wicher. The Russian is "Bil' Rejn" and other translations of the surname include Raine, Rayne, Reyn, Rhein, Rhine, or Ryan. Venona New York KGB 1945, 209–10.
- Raina, Andrey Ivanovich: Soviet intelligence officer. Used the pseudonym Andrey Shevchenko when in the United States in WWII. Cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks: "Arseny". Cover name in Venona: ARSENIUS [ARSENIJ and ARSENIY]. As Raina: Vassiliev Black Notebook, 94; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 42, 86, 91–93. As Shevchenko: Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 15, 75; Venona New York KGB 1943, 178, 190–91, 193; Venona New York KGB 1944, 27, 72, 90, 148, 229, 270, 272, 274, 290, 353, 409, 481, 499, 514, 632, 635, 646, 675, 747; Venona New York KGB 1945, 138, 142, 180, 188, 206; Venona Special Studies, 8. As "Arseny": Vassiliev Black Notebook, 110, 113, 117, 119, 121–22, 124, 126, 135; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 109, 118; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 29, 34, 76, 81. As ARSENIUS [ARSENIJ and ARSENIY]: Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 15, 74–75; Venona New York KGB 1943, 178, 189–93; Venona New York KGB 1944, 27, 72, 89–90, 148, 228–29, 269–74, 289–90, 352–53, 408–9, 481, 498–99, 514, 631–32, 634–35, 645–46, 675, 746–47; Venona Special Studies, 8–9, 137–38.
- "Rainbow": American project name of a new tank gun stabilizer. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 44.
- "Rainbow" [Raduga] (cover name in Vassiliev's notebooks): Espionage project targeting radar. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 68.
- Rainey, Henry T.: U.S. Representative, 1923–1934 (D. IL). Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 18–20, 22, 27, 29.
- Raisin: See Jacob Golos.
- Rajk, Laszlo: Senior Hungarian Communist leader executed in a Stalin-era purge by the Communist regime in Hungary in 1949. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 87.
- Rakosi, Matyan: Hungarian Communist leader. Venona New York KGB 1944, 685.

123. KGB officer Alexander Feklisov wrote that his successor in the U.S. was Alexander Rogov who had the cover name "Svet," i.e. "Light." Feklisov and Kostin, Man Behind, 150.

- “Ralph Waldo Emerson”: U.S. ship. Venona USA Naval GRU, 286.
- “Ram” [Taran]: see “Battering Ram”.
- Ramirez, Guillermo Atria: Chilean diplomat. Venona New York KGB 1941–42, 39, 42.
- Ramirez, Pedro Pablo: Military officer and president of Argentina, 1943–1944. Venona New York KGB 1943, 129–30.
- Ramishvili, Semen Spiridonovich: Senior Soviet naval officer with the SGPC. Venona San Francisco KGB, 242–43.
- “Ramsay” [Ramzay] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Clarence Hiskey. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 109, 112, 115, 136, 138; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 116; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 1, 7–12, 23, 27–28.
- RAMSAY and RAMSEY [RAMZAJ] (cover name in Venona): Clarence Hiskey. Unidentified by Venona analysts but identified in Vassiliev’s notebooks as Hiskey. Venona New York KGB 1944, 61, 315–16, 502–3, 702; Venona New York KGB 1945, 112–14, 130–32; Venona Special Studies, 59.
- Ramsay, David: Described as an intelligence contact known to Victor Perlo in 1945. Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 77.
- Ramsey, Norman Peter: Senior scientist at Los Alamos atomic facility. Venona analysts considered the possibility that the cover name RAMZAJ, translated as either RAMSAY or RAMSEY, was not a cover name but a true name, i.e., that of Norman Peter Ramsey. Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks show that it was a cover name and not a reference to Norman Ramsey. Venona New York KGB 1944, 61; Venona New York KGB 1945, 132; Venona Special Studies, 59.
- Ramzin, Leonid: Soviet professor of engineering accused in 1930 of being a key figure in the anti-Bolshevik (and non-existent) “Industrial Party”. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 88.
- Rand, Esther Trebach: Soviet intelligence source/agent. Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Aida” until September 1944, then “Klo”. Cover names in Venona: AIDA and CHLOE [KLO]. As Rand: Venona New York KGB 1944, 82, 462; Venona Special Studies, 3, 36. As “Aida” and “Klo”: Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 55. As AIDA: Venona New York KGB 1944, 82, 462; Venona Special Studies, 3, 36, 174. As CHLOE [KLO]: Venona New York KGB 1944, 462; Venona Special Studies, 3, 36, 174.
- Rand School of Social Science: Associated with the Socialist Party and the Social Democratic Federation. Venona New York KGB 1943, 88–89.
- RANDOLPH [RANDOL’F] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, possibly a journalist. Venona USA GRU, 63–64, 76, 83–84, 96–97, 119–20, 122, 125–26.
- “Randolph”: Work name used by the American Communist Party representative to the Comintern in the 1930s. Vassiliev Odd Pages, 3.
- Rankin, John: U.S. Representative (D. MS). Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 95.
- Raouta (or Raoutta), Alexander: Romanian officer. Venona New York KGB 1944, 430–31.
- Rapallo Treaty: 1922 agreement between Germany and the Soviet Union normalizing their international relationship. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 34, 60.
- Rappaport (possibly Rapaport), Joseph: Russian-born Communist active in labor and Jewish organizations. Venona New York KGB 1945, 196.
- Rappaport (possibly Rapaport), Shirley: wife of Joseph Rappaport. Cover name in Venona: LANY. As Rappaport and LANY: Venona New York KGB 1945, 196; Venona Special Studies, 40.
- “Ras” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Charles de Gaulle. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115.
- RAS (cover name in Venona): Charles de Gaulle. Venona New York KGB 1943, 5, 100–101, 136–37, 164–65, 250–51; Venona New York KGB 1944, 215, 217, 248, 262, 311, 537, 576, 603; Venona Special Studies, 59.
- RASHEL’ [RACHEL] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, associated with some operation in or involving Belgium. Venona New York KGB 1943, 125–26; Venona Special Studies, 59.

Rasin: See Jacob Golos.

“Rasists” [Rasisty] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Gaullists. The cover name in Russian, “Rasisty”, translates as Racists, but in this case the cover name is derived from “Ras,” the cover name for Charles de Gaulle, and “Ras” is not a Russian word. “Rasisty”, then appears to be a pun based on de Gaulle’s cover name. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 115.

RASISTS (cover name in Venona): Gaullists; adherents to the Free French movement headed by Charles de Gaulle. Venona New York KGB 1943, 5.

Raspiska (tradecraft term): See Signature.

Rasputin, Grigory: Mystic monk who influenced the family of Tsar Nicholas II. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #3, 105–6.

Rasputnis,?: Unidentified. Venona New York KGB 1944, 230.

Rastvorov, Yury A.: KGB officer at its Tokyo station, defected in 1954 to the U.S. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #2, 55.

“Rats” [Krysy] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Zionists in particular but applied broadly to Jewish ethnic organizations and their adherents that were not under Communist leadership. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 68; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 29, 115.

RAT [KRYSA] and RATS [KRYSY] (cover name in Venona): Venona analysts judged this cover name as meaning “possibly Jews”. Venona New York KGB 1943, 4; Venona New York KGB 1944, 82; Venona New York KGB 1945, 174.

RATSIYA [RADIO STATION] (cover name in Venona): The Office of War Information. Venona New York KGB 1943, 103, 112–13, 171, 187, 241, 272, 355; Venona New York KGB 1944, 54–55, 76, 108–09, 157, 227, 293, 348, 451–52, 492, 537, 683, 686, 700–701; Venona New York KGB 1945, 122, 124.

Rauschnig, Hermann: German author and former government official. Venona San Francisco KGB, 9.

RAVINE [YAR] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified. Venona Special Studies, 122.

Rawson,?: Unidentified, associated with Argentina. Venona New York KGB 1943, 129–30.

Ray, George D.: Engineer with Bell Aircraft. Venona New York KGB 1943, 192.

“Ray” [Skat] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Likely William Stapler. Stapler is not directly identified as “Ray.” But “Ray” is described as a Soviet intelligence source, technical line, prior to October 1944, then the cover name changed to “Karl”. As “Karl” described as “chemical engineer at the Hercules Powder Company.” Stapler, a chemist, worked for Hercules. KGB agent Thomas Black identified Stapler as a Soviet industrial espionage source. Black’s description of Stapler’s activities matches the activities of the Soviet source “Ray”/“Karl” in Vassiliev’s notebooks. “Ray” and “Karl” also appeared in the Venona decrypts, and Venona analysts identified the real name but redacted it. However, a 1951 FBI memo reviewing Venona noted that nine persons that Venona demonstrated were assisting Soviet espionage were deceased. One of those listed as deceased was Stapler. That, along with Black’s evidence, indicates that the redacted name in the Venona decrypts for “Ray” and “Karl” was William Stapler.¹²⁴ Vassiliev Black Notebook, 49, 69, 105, 110, 117; Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 109.

124. Interview with Thomas Black, 20 June 1950, pp. 195-205, 257-260, Philadelphia file, Thomas L. Black, 65-4332-1-B-17 FBI FOIA “Julius Rosenberg et al.”; Ladd to Director, 28 February 1951, “This memorandum is designed ...,” page 19 of the FBI FOIA “Venona” released to Daniel P. Moynihan, part 1, <<http://foia.fbi.gov/foiaindex/venona.htm>>; Stapler is likely the source Feklisov gives the cover name “Knvat” or “Vulture” in Feklisov and Kostin, Man Behind, 55–56.

Sinarquistas and Synarchists: Catholic political movement in Mexico. The “Sinarquista Manifesto” of 1937 had elements of the Catholic social thinking based on the papal encyclical Rerum Novarum of Pope Leo XIII, stressed social co-operation as opposed to the class conflict of socialism, and hierarchy and respect for authority as opposed to liberalism, and reflected as well elements of the authoritarian political Catholicism of the regimes of Engelbert Dollfuss in Austria, Antonio Salazar in Portugal, and Francisco Franco in Spain. In the context of Mexican politics, this meant opposition to the centralist, semi-socialist and harsh anti-clerical policies of the dominant Partido de la Revolución Mexicana – Party of the Mexican Revolution. Sinarquistas were denounced as clerical Fascists and accused of sympathy for Nazism by liberals and leftists. Venona analysts in a muddled footnote confused Sinarquistas with refugee Spanish Syndicalist and anarchists (anarcho-syndicalists) in Mexico. As Sinarquistas: Venona New York KGB 1944, 163–64; Venona Mexico City KGB, 110, 207–08. As Synarchists: Venona New York KGB 1943, 170.

- “Smith” [Smit] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Soviet intelligence officer. There appear to have been two KGB officers with the cover name “Smith” operating in the United States in the 1930s. One, named ? Chivin, was described as the American station chief of a 1930s KGB special operations group (sabotage, kidnapping and assassination) headed by Yakov Serebryansky that was in touch with but operated independently of the KGB legal and illegal stations in New York. In 1940 Chivin refused to return to the USSR. The other “Smith” was Grigory Kheifets who worked initially for the New York legal station and was later sent to California where the KGB maintained a small station operating out of the Soviet’s San Francisco consulate. Differentiating the two “Smiths” is in several cases difficult.

- Soblen (Soble), Robert: Soviet intelligence agent. Brother of Jack Soble and a medical doctor. Used extensively for anti-Trotsky work in Europe and America. Convicted of espionage in 1961, he jumped bail while awaiting sentencing. He died of a self-inflicted wound while being returned to the United States in 1962. The surname always appears in Venona analysts’ footnotes as “Soble”, the anglicized version of their Lithuanian name, Sobolevicius, adopted by his brother Jack Soble. Robert, however, adopted Soblen as his surname in America. Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks “Roman”, party name Fed Carroll. Cover name in Venona: ROMAN. The cover name also appears in some Venona messages in an deciphered form as UCN/25. “Son” [Syn] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): F.A. Garanin in 1945–46. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 50, 61.

SON [SYN] (cover name in Venona): Rudy Baker in 1944. Venona analysts did not identify SON as Baker because the two messages about SON provided few clues to his identify. The identification comes from Comintern records in Russia’s RGASPI archive. In that archive’s collection of coded correspondence between the Comintern and the CPUSA (RGASPI 495–184) are dozens of messages from “Brother” in Moscow with “Father” and “Son” in the United States. Annotations on these messages identify “Brother” as Georgi Dimitrov and “Father” as Earl Browder. The identification of “Son” as Rudy Baker comes in two ways. First, in these messages “Son” is the head of the CPUSA’s covert arm, which Baker had taken over in mid-1938. None of the Comintern messages to “Son” occur until after Baker had been to Moscow in January 1939 and briefed Comintern officials on his assumption of leadership over the CPUSA secret apparatus. Further, located in a second Comintern collection, that of Dimitrov himself, is another document. It is from General Fitin, head of the KGB’s foreign intelligence directorate, to Dimitrov. This May 1942 message states “We are forwarding a telegram we received from New York addressed to you from Rudy [Rudi].” The enclosed message Fitin referred to is signed by “Son.”¹⁶⁰ Venona New York KGB 1944, 331, 474; Venona Special Studies, 70.

- “Squirrel” [Belka] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Soviet intelligence agent/courier. References to in 1945, 1947, 1950. The notebooks describe “Squirrel” as the “wife of ‘Hudson’” There are two Hudson’s in Vassiliev’s notebooks. One is the unidentified Soviet agent “Hudson”. If “Squirrel” is married to the unidentified agent “Hudson”, then she is also unidentified. However, senior CPUSA official Roy Hudson also appears in Vassiliev’s notebooks and was know to KGB officers. His wife was Edith Emery and her background would qualify her for covert courier work. In the 1930s Emery had worked with Whittaker Chambers CPUSA-GRU network and she was the subject of a badly broken New York KGB message to Moscow on 3 July 1942 mentioning Emery, the Comintern, and the GRU. Just five days after the garbled KGB cable to Moscow about Emery, Fitin of the KGB asked the Comintern to provide whatever information the Comintern had on Emery as well as on two other persons associated with her. While exactly what the 1942 KGB cable and Fitin's query were about is not clear.¹⁶¹ This was a period when the KGB was reviewing and in some cases reviving dormant Comintern and GRU networks, and these documents may part of that process of vetting Emery for being taken on as a courier. The evidence, however, is insufficient to reach a firm conclusion. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 135–36; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, 91.

SQUIRREL [BELKA] (cover name in Venona): Soviet intelligence agent/courier. SQUIRREL was mentioned in a single 1945 Venona message that also discussed LENS (Michael Sidorovich) and Venona analysts suggested that SQUIRREL was possibly Ann Sidorovich. Based on Alexander Vassiliev's notebooks, this was mistaken. Instead, "Squirrel" was a courier who serviced a safe house hosted by "Lens" (Michael Sidorovich) and "Objective" (Ann Sidorovich). Venona New York KGB 1945, 88; Venona Special Studies, 12.

S.R.: Socialist Revolutionary. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 144, 147; Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 83, 85; Venona New York KGB 1943, 147–48.

- Stamoinen, Irjosaa: Described as a Finn involved in the armaments trade. Venona Washington KGB, 48.
- STAMP [SHTAMP]: Harold Smeltzer. STAMP was identified in the Venona decrypts as a Soviet intelligence source/agent for a source at Bell Aircraft in New York and whose real name was redacted. STAMP became ARMOR in October 1944. “Armor” was identified in Vassiliev’s notebooks as Harold Smeltzer, therefore STAMP was Harold Smeltzer. Venona New York KGB 1944, 274, 499, 543; Venona Special Studies, 80, 176.

- STANISLAV (cover name in Venona): Unidentified. Venona New York KGB 1944, 197–98.
- “Stanley” [Stenli] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Unidentified Soviet intelligence source/agent, 1938 involved in technical intelligence. A candidate for “Stanley” would be Stanley Glass. “Stanley” appears in association with industrial spies “El” (Alfred Slack) and “Film” (Richard Briggs). Glass, a chemist, was associated at the time with Slack and Briggs. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 101.
- STANLEY [STENLI] (cover name in Venona): Kim Philby in 1945. Venona London KGB, 9, 18–23, 33.
- Stanly, ?: Unidentified. Venona USA Diplomatic, 65.
- Stapler, William: Soviet intelligence source/agent. Former KGB agent Thomas Black identified Stapler as a Soviet industrial espionage source. Black’s description of Stapler’s activities matches the activities of the Soviet source “Ray” (later changed to “Karl”) in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks. “Ray” and “Karl” also appeared in the Venona decrypts, and NSA/FBI analysis identified the real name but redacted it. However, a 1951 FBI memo reviewing Venona noted that nine persons that Venona demonstrated were assisting Soviet espionage were deceased. One of those listed as deceased was Stapler. That, along with Black’s evidence, indicates that the redacted name in the Venona decrypts for “Ray” and “Karl” was William Stapler.¹⁶² Cover

- “Syn” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Son”.
- SYN [SON] (cover name in Venona): Rudy Baker. Venona analysts did not identify SON as Baker because the two messages about SON provided few clues to his identify. The identification comes from Comintern records in Russia’s RGASPI archive. In that archive’s collection of coded correspondence between the Comintern and the CPUSA (RGASPI 495–184) are dozens of messages from “Brother” in Moscow with “Father” and “Son” in the United States. Annotations on these messages identify “Brother” as Georgi Dimitrov and “Father” as Earl Browder. The identification of “Son” as Rudy Baker comes in two ways. First, in these messages “Son” is the head of the CPUSA’s covert arm, which Baker had taken over in mid-1938. None of the Comintern messages to “Son” occur until after Baker had been to Moscow in January 1939 and briefed Comintern officials on his assumption of leadership over the CPUSA secret apparatus. Further, located in a second Comintern collection, that of Dimitrov himself, is another document. It is from General Fitin, head of the KGB’s foreign intelligence directorate, to Dimitrov. This May 1942 message states “We are forwarding a telegram we received from New York addressed to you from Rudy” the enclosed message is signed by “Son.”¹⁷⁰ Venona New York KGB 1944, 331, 474; Venona Special Studies, 70.

Synarchists and Sinarquistas: Catholic political movement in Mexico. The “Sinarquista Manifesto” of 1937 had elements of the Catholic social thinking based on the papal encyclical Rerum Novarum of Pope Leo XIII, stressed social co-operation as opposed to the class conflict of socialism, and hierarchy and respect for authority as opposed to liberalism, and reflected as well elements of the authoritarian political Catholicism of the regimes of Engelbert Dollfuss in Austria, Antonio Salazar in Portugal, and Francisco Franco in Spain. In the context of Mexican politics, this meant opposition to the centralist, semi-socialist and harsh anti-clerical policies of the dominant Partido de la Revolución Mexicana – Party of the Mexican Revolution. Synarchists were denounced as clerical Fascists and accused of sympathy for Nazism by liberals and leftists. Venona analysts in a muddled footnote confused Synarchists with refugee Spanish Syndicalist and anarchists (anarcho-syndicalists) in Mexico. As Synarchists: Venona New York KGB 1943, 170. 171. Identified by Elizabeth Bentley as part of the Silvermaster espionage group. Taylor sued the Washington Daily News in 1954 for libel for its coverage of Bentley's statement that he was part of an espionage ring. Not wanting the expense of a trial, the newspaper settled the suit out of court and withdrew its statements about Taylor. Bentley was upset by the paper's retreat, and she herself never retracted her description of Taylor. Taylor's lawyers prepared a wide-ranging study that assailed Bentley as a liar and fraud and circulated it widely to the press. The FBI answered with a memo that replied point-by-point and supported Bentley's credibility. - “Truten” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Drone”.
- Ts-16 (cover name in Venona): Unidentified, appears to be a Soviet intelligence source/agent. Venona San Francisco KGB, 94; Venona Special Studies, 118.
- TSAGI: Central Aerohydrodynamic Institute, USSR. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 107.
- “Tsekh” (Russian original of a cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): See “Workshop”.
- Tsekol'skij, Edward: Described as chief of the Cinema-film Department of the Polish Information Center. Venona analysts speculated that this might be a reference to an “E. Cenkowski.” Venona New York KGB 1944, 363–64.
- Tselnis, Robert [Tsel'nis]: Pseudonym for Whittaker Chambers. Cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks: “Karl.” While not directly identified as Chambers in Vassiliev’s notebooks the description of Tselnis fits Chambers. Tselnis is described as a GRU group handler in late 1930s who defected. The passage on Tselnis is reported as a GRU response to a query from KGB as to the identify of the GRU agent “Karl”, and “Karl” is elsewhere in the notebooks identified as Chambers. Tselnis, translated as Zelnis, is also identified in Russian intelligence literature as a GRU agent

- with additional characteristics that fit Chambers.¹⁷⁹ As Tselnis: Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 46, 65–66. As “Karl”: Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 46, 65.

- TWO, The [DVOJKA] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified. Venona Special Studies, 22.
- “Tyazh” (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Likely Irving Goff. “Tyazh” is described in the notebooks as recruited into the American “special services”, i.e. covert warfare agency via the CPUSA and sent to North Africa. Further, that “Tyazh” was among those on a list of OSS personnel suspected of being secret Communists that Duncan Lee, a Soviet source in the OSS, had turned over to the KGB. This description fits Goff. In the fall of 1941 William Donovan, then just organizing the OSS, asked Milton Wolff, last commander of the Abraham Lincoln battalion and head of its veterans’ organization, to recommend some of his comrades for OSS recruitment. Donovan wanted to use these men as OSS operatives with the anti-Nazi resistance in Europe. While Communists had held aloof from the anti-Nazi resistance in German-occupied nations during the Nazi-Soviet Pact, once Germany attacked the USSR in June 1941, they quickly joined the resistance, and Donovan believed that the Lincoln battalion veterans would be able to work well with Communists in the anti-Nazi underground. After receiving permission from the CPUSA, Wolff recommended a number of International Brigades veterans who became OSS officers, including Irving Goff. Goff became an OSS officer, he was sent to North Africa, and he was on the list of suspected Communists Duncan turned over to Soviet intelligence and the only one on the list known to have served in North Africa.¹⁸⁰ Additionally, One KGB cable partially deciphered by the Venona project (Venona New York KGB 1943, 105) likely was about Goff. The June 1943 cable refers to a letter received by the wife of a KGB agent with a cover name Venona cryptanalysts could never decode and that was simply listed as “UCN/6”

180. Donovan’s use of Wolff to recruit International Brigade veterans is discussed in Klehr, Haynes, and Firsov, Secret World, 260–80; Klehr, Haynes, and Firsov, Secret World, 260–80; John Earl Haynes and Harvey Klehr, “The Myth of ‘Premature Antifascism,’” New Criterion 21, no. 1 (September 2002); Peter N. Carroll, The Odyssey of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade: Americans in the Spanish Civil War (Stanford, Calif.: Stanford University Press, 1994), 254.

- (unidentified cover name #6). In the portions of the cable cryptanalysts could read it appears that “UCN/6” was writing from Algeria and made a reference to Milton Felsen. Felsen was also an International Brigades veteran, Communist, and OSS officer. He had been part of Goff’s OSS unit in North Africa, but by the time of the cable he had been wounded in combat and captured by German forces. Felsen was not on the list that Lee gave the KGB. Very likely “UCN/6” was “Tyazh”/Goff. Vassiliev White Notebook #1, 1; Vassiliev White Notebook #3, 107.

181. KEEN [KIN] (cover name in Venona): Unidentified or possibly Stephen Urewich in October and November 1944. An October 1944 message changes the cover name RYBOLOV [FISHERMAN or OSPREY] to KEEN [KIN] (Venona KGB New York 1944 Cables, 542). KEEN then appears in a November message as a group leader (Venona KGB New York 1944 Cables, 676). But in September there was a message shifting RYBOLOV to BLOCK [BLOC] (Venona KGB New York 1944 Cables, 462-63), and in Alexander Vassiliev's notebooks "Block" (earlier "Rybolov") is identified as Urewich. Urewich, however, was a technical source and did not appear as a group leader, and appeared as "Block" in 1945. Consequently, it is not clear that KEEN, earlier RYBOLOV was Urewich. VEKSEL and VEKSEL' [BILL OF EXCHANGE] (cover name in Venona): Enrico Fermi. Analysts with the Venona project judged that "Veksel" was "possibly" J. Robert Oppenheimer. However, in light of information in Alexander Vassiliev's notebooks, this is mistaken. Instead, "Veksel" appears to have been a minor decoding error for "Vector" ["Vektor" in Russian], and "Vector" was Enrico Fermi.¹⁸⁶ As VEKSEL: Venona New York KGB 1945, 112–14, 130–32, 190–91;

186. Vassiliev's Vassiliev White Notebook #1, p. 110, contains a late 1944 report by the Semen Semenov, just returned to Moscow Center after several years as the senior technical/scientific intelligence officer at the New York Station. His report discusses various scientific sources he had deal with in the United States, including Byron Darling, cover name "Huron". The report stated: "'Huron' — on a lead from the fellowcountrymen [Communist Party], Ph.D. in physics, synthetic rubber. . . . The connection of greatest interest is the Italian professor Fermi, who was involved in 'Enormous' while working at Columb. Univ. Currently, according to 'Huron,' Fermi works at the university in Chicago." A November 1943 message from Moscow Center to the New York KGB station discussion how to use "Huron"/Darling reminded the New York station that "Huron is personally acquainted with employees at the U. of Chicago, including Fermi." (Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, p. 8). In a March 19, 1945 letter to Moscow Center (Vassiliev White Notebook #1, p. 116), Leonid Kvasnikov, then chief of technical/scientific intelligence at the New York KGB station, stated his plans: "Tasks: . . . Develop the cultivation of Fermi started through Huron [Darling]; work on the possibility of approaching Oppenheimer through Ernst [Paul Nahin]."

In a decoded Venona cable of 21 March 1945 (Venona New York KGB 1945, 130-132), Moscow wrote that in earlier messages it several times had given instructions "to send Huron to Chicago to re-establish contact with Veksel". Moscow renewed the instructions and also said that "Huron should also make use of his stay in Chicago to renew his acquaintance with Goldsmith." (Goldsmith is redacted in the text of the released message but NSA left Goldsmith in the summary title to the message, making identification of the redacted name obvious.) An April 1945 response by the New York KGB station is in Black Notebook, p. 137. "Aleksey [Yatskov] on the meeting with Huron [Darling] 1.04.45 . . . "'Huron' has as yet done nothing to renew his acquaintance with Fermi. He has not written to Goldsmith, or to Fermi himself."

Taken together, these passages indicate that "VEKSEL" was Fermi, not Oppenheimer. But "VEKSEL" does not appear in Vassiliev's notebooks as the cover name of anyone. However, "Vector" does appear as the cover name for Enrico Fermi (Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #1, p. 17). Very likely the original Soviet cable did have "Vector" but in decoding this cover name, NSA's reconstruction of the Soviet code book was off slightly and "Vector" ("Vektor" in Russian) became "VEKSEL", thus "VEKSEL" is simply a decoding garble for "Vector", so VEKSEL in Venona is Enrico Fermi.

Why did Venona analysts think that VEKSEL was Oppenheimer? the 21 March 1945 cable does not point toward Oppenheimer. It indicates that "Huron" should try to see VEKSEL in Chicago. And while Oppenheimer did visit the Manhattan Project facilities at Chicago, he spend most of his time at Los Alamos or Berkeley. Venona's identification of VEKSEL as Oppenheimer appears to have been based on a cable of of the KGB New York station to Moscow of 26 May 1945 (Venona New York KGB 1945, 189-91). This message listed major Manhattan Project work sites, including "'The Reservation [Los Alamos]'", the main practical “Vendor” [Prodavets] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Likely Harry Kagan. “Vendor” was described in Vassiliev’s notebooks as an American Communist, former agent handler for Jacob Golos, and employee of the Soviet Government Purchasing Commission used to “cover” employees of the SGPC. Elizabeth Bentley identified Kagan, an employee of the SGPC, as an agent of Jacob Golos used to watch and report on any suspect activities of SGPC employees.¹⁸⁷ “Vendor” translated as SALESMAN appears in the Venona decryptions as a Soviet source in the SGPC. Vassiliev Black Notebook, 54–55, 84, 189.

research work on Enormous [atomic bomb]. Director “VEKSEL” Since Oppenheimer directed Los Alamos, that appears to have misled Venona analysts into identifying “VEKSEL” as Oppenheimer. Possibly 26 May cable mistakenly listed “VEKSEL” as the director at Los Alamos because at that time Fermi had moved to Los Alamos from Chicago for the final phases of the project, and the KGB officer sending Venona 799 misunderstood the information its sources had supplied and made the mistake of assuming the famous Fermi was in charge of the New Mexico facility. There are several earlier reports in Alexander Vassiliev’s notebooks about Oppenheimer, then a lesser public figure than Fermi, where it is clear that the KGB knew Oppenheimer was a senior figure in the Manhattan Project but did not understand until well into 1945 that he was the scientific director of Los Alamos

- Whalen, Grover: New York Police Commissioner. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 73–74, 76.
- Whalen documents, The: In 1930 New York police commissioner Grover Whalen announced to the press that he had obtained a trove of internal documents from the New York offices of Amtorg that identified dozens of Amtorg’s staff as Soviet spies and that Amtorg was little more than a front for Soviet intelligence. Within a few days of Whalen’s production of the documents, however, radical journalist John Spivak proved that they were forgeries (rather crude ones) and even identified the New York printer who had prepared the fake documents, although who had commissioned the printer to do so remained unclear. Spivak’s demonstration discredited Commissioner Whalen and also tended to rebut widespread rumors that Amtorg was a front for Soviet espionage. The speed with which he revealed the forgeries convinced some skeptics that Spivak knew they had been foisted on the police to embarrass them. Vassiliev Yellow Notebook #4, 73

- “Willy” [Villi] (cover name in Vassiliev’s notebooks): Likely David A. Salmon. “Willy” was described as Soviet intelligence source/agent at Department of State, 1934–1935, recruited by “Leo”/Lore. Described as providing “copies of reports addressed to the State Department from ambassadors, consuls, and U.S. military attachés in Europe and East Asia” that were judged “very valuable”. Described as “chief of the DOS’s communications and archives division”, and having a DOS salary of $5,600. David Salmon was chief of State Department's "Division of Communications and Records" in 1934 and 1935 and his salary at the time was $5,600.¹⁹⁶ Salmon's division

196. Salmon, David Alden entries in the 1934 and 1935 editions of U.S. Department of State, Register of the Department of State, July 1, 1934 (Washington, DC: U.S. Govt. Print. Off, 1934). The Intelligence Service of Russia (SVR) in a officially-sponsored history dismissed "Willy" and all of "Leo's" agents as faked. (The history did not provide real names for either.) The history claimed that when Soviet officers pressed "Leo" for a direct meeting with "Willy", he tried to delay it and when it finally occurred the person presented as "Willy" was an obvious fake. The KGB then cut its ties with Lore. Primakov, Ocherki Istorii Rossiiskoi Vneshnei Razvedki v Shesti Tomakh T.3: 1933–1944 [Essays on the History of Russian Foreign Intelligence Vol. 3, 1933–1941]

A reading of Vassiliev's notebooks does not support this version. Instead, it supports that "Willy"/Salmond was a real source for "Leo"/Lore and that Lore then faked an additional State Department source with the cover names "Daniel" and "12" and attributed part of Salmond's material to "Daniel". Both the real "Willy"/Salmond and the fake "Daniel"/"12" were highly paid sources, so Lore was able to pocket the money the KGB provided for "Daniel." Lore was also highly paid for his role as an intermediary between the sources and the KGB. Not only would Lore seek to avoid having Soviet officers meet with the nonexistent "Daniel" and resort to providing a fake, given's Lore's mercenary motives, he wanted to avoid allowing Soviet officers any contact with the real Salmond. A direct KGB link with Salmond would mean the Soviets would no longer need Lore as a highly paid intermediary, so he would also resort to presenting a fake "Willy" when forced to set up a meeting. Further, Lore was a journalist writing a regular column entitled "Behind the Cables" that presented foreign news and analysis that was supposed to be the 'real' story behind the limited information the State Department released about diplomatic communications. Salmond ran the State Department's communications office and had access to all DOS cables. It may be the case that Salmond, whose subsidy from Lore was more than his State Department salary, thought he was only selling information to an American journalist, not to a Soviet spy, and Lore feared that any meeting between a Soviet officer and Salmond would result in Salmond severing the relationship and, worse, going to State Department security. There is no indication that Salmond had any ideological sympathy for communism and the Soviet Union.

The Vassiliev notebooks indicate that by 1938 the KGB realized that Lore was faking at least one source and pocketing the sources' subsidy but that also Lore had become politically associated with American Trotskyists, then a deadly sin in Soviet eyes and in the context of the then ongoing purge of Soviet security services, deadly for anyone associated with him. Boris Bazarov, the chief of the illegal KGB station who had dealt with Lore, was recalled to Moscow and executed. The remaining KGB officers in the U.S. cut all ties with Lore, dismissing everything as faked. Additionally, even if the KGB officers in the U.S. had wanted to salvage the real "Will"/Salmond from the wreckage of Lore's apparatus, they would also have feared that Salmond thought he was only selling information to an American journalist and would recoil at a direct Soviet approach. The safest course was to define all of Lore's sources as faked and forget about it.

Interestingly, after the KGB cast Lore out, GRU, which clearly didn't judge Lore to be a total faker, considered picking up some of the pieces. Whittaker Chambers GRU superior told him that Lore had been connected to a Soviet intelligence apparatus but "something stupid" had

- Wirt, William A., and "Wirt Affair": Nationally known k-12 school administrator. In 1934 Dr. Wirt attended a Washington cocktail party at the home of Alice Barrows, an official of the U.S. Office of Education deeply involved in CPUSA activities. Wirt claimed that at the party a member of President Roosevelt's "brain trust" (as the press named them) of influential advisors had told him that FDR was a manipulated front man for a Communist plan to take power and would be replaced with an American "Stalin". A U.S. House committee chaired by Rep. Alfred Bulwinkle (D. NC) heard Wirt's testimony. happened. He instructed Chambers to talk to Lore and see if he would hand over any of his former contacts. (Chambers was unclear about the date, but it appeared to have been in 1937.) Chambers met with Lore; the two got along well and reminisced about Russians with whom they had worked. But despite months of friendly conversations and promises, Lore never gave Chambers any contacts possibly because the GRU didn't want to use Lore as a paid intermediary but wanted direct contact with his source or sources.
