

SOUTH, to Cde. STALIN

Inasmuch as Vyshinsky has demanded an immediate reply I sent him the following instructions in connection with his telegram N° 8-10:

“1. You ought not engage in extended polemics with Marshall about detailed questions in the first speech in order not to weaken the presentation of the main approach of your speech with details.

2. The question of Korea. [You] ought to briefly point to the December agreement of the three governments and to the commitments of the US and USSR to jointly prepare a resolution of the question about the unification of Korea into an independent democratic country and that the new proposal of Marshall is a violation of the commitments which the United States took upon itself, and thus it is incorrect and unacceptable. It stands to reason that when the Americans introduce their new proposals about Korea in the Assembly you will have to give a comprehensive reply and criticism of this proposal.

3. [We] agree with you concerning questions of the veto and the creation of a committee of peace and security”.

If there are any other instructions about this question please report them to me to be passed to Vyshinsky. N° 382/sh
